JOHN COXON
President, 1960-61

Our President, 1960-61

John M. Coxon needs no introduction to Old Scholars. His deep, sincere interest and affection for the School and Old Scholars, have been amply borne out in the service he has so unselfishly given to both. For eight years as Secretary he was responsible for organising our Annual Gatherings. Not an easy task as previous Secretaries will remember. Before that he was first Auditor and then Treasurer of the Association—in fact a member of the Committee since 1938.

John was at Sibford from 1929 to 1935 under the Headship of Arthur Johnstone. As younger brother to Norman Coxon he was no stranger to the School and settled into its life without difficulty. He achieved the distinction and honour of being Head Boy in his last year.

After leaving Sibford he was articled to a firm of Chartered Accountants and justified his education at Sibford by qualifying at the age of 22.

War clouds were gathering momentum and in 1938 John was faced with the problem of registering for service in the Forces or not. Undoubtedly his early training at Sibford influenced his final decision. In 1939 he was granted conditional exemption and obtained employment at the Wool Control in Charlbury under a Friend, Alfred Searle. It was about this time that John felt convinced that he would like to join the Society of Friends but decided it would not be right to do so during the war years. He is now an active member of Bull Street Meeting where he has just been made an Overseer.

In 1942 whilst still in Charlbury he married Irene Wagstaff, a scholar at Sibford during the same period as himself. They have three children—a girl and two boys.

In 1946 he joined the Market Research Dept. of Kalamazoo Ltd. and, since his work involves much travelling, he takes the opportunity whenever time permits of looking up O.S. Reading is one of his greatest forms of relaxation and he is Chairman of the Kalamazoo Memorial Library. His other interests cover a wide range from household do-it-yourself jobs, gardening (he is a founder-member and treasurer of the Kalamazoo Horticultural Society) to making chutneys and pickles and getting first prizes for them! At this year's Kalamazoo Show he carried off (for the second year running) the Silver Rose Bowl for a collection of vegetables for a "Housewives' Choice" Stew.

Though not a robust type he enjoyed playing hockey regularly with occasional cricket and tennis until his operation last December which has, unfortunately, restricted his participation in these energetic games. However, Irene has benefited by his absence from the sports field as John is now becoming an expert at rug-making.

His daughter, Christine, is at present a scholar at Sibford, and John himself represents<sup>1</sup> Old Scholars on the School Committee and is on the Committee of the Parent-Teacher Association.

1960 Easter Parade

Early arrivals for the weekend came during the morning, but it wasn't until the afternoon that the crowd began to arrive. The Committee Meeting was under way by three o'clock. The President wondered why there weren't many people at the Meeting until someone told her it was being held in the Senior Girls' Common Room and not in the Old Scholars' Room.

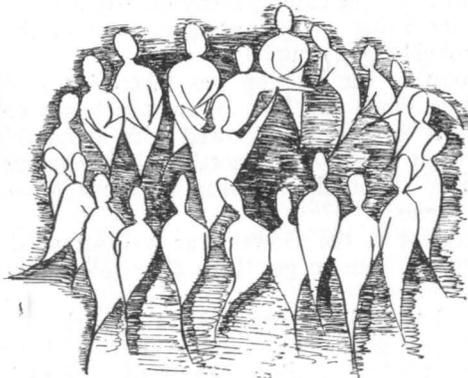

After the tea-break the Committee re-assembled while an attempt was made to start a jive session in the Junior Girls' Common Room (the old Gym.). This, unfortunately, was unsuccessful due, it is thought, to a number of reasons, the most interesting suggestion being that the youthful members were too self-conscious in the presence of the older members with whom they were forced to share the room, as the Committee was still in session. I think most people only wanted to natter, anyway there weren't enough girls.

Soup was served, and it would appear that Committee work is thirsty work, "Have another cup, John!"—this was followed by rockets at the Elm, which was attended by some twenty odd (I'm not quite sure which way the odd is intended) Old Scholars.

Next morning breakfast was early and well attended. Saturday was a busy day with a well packed programme, starting in the morning with a six-a-side mixed hockey tournament, which was good fun (liar — you were nearly dead after it) and eventually won by a team consisting of David Smith, Derek Gaffee, Ann Tanner, Mike Rice, Eddie Goudge and Alan Little. This was quite unfair as Alan Little was supposed to be Sue Holland, and he had his King's Nortian mate, John Coxon, helping him with a whistle.

The afternoon gave a choice of activities—a soccer match, a rummage sale or a trip to Compton Wyniatas.

The soccer match was against the Village and proved too much after the strenuous morning, even with the help of the Navy, in the form of

Some twenty-odd Old Scholars

The Rummage Sale . . . was highly successful

Eddie Gouge, who played an excellent game at centre-half, ably backed up by Mike Rice between the sticks. The match ended with the Village winning by six goals to two; the O.S. goals being scored by Alfred Holland — in off the knee from two inches — and Alan Roberts.

The Rummage Sale, held in aid of the World Refugee Year, at the Village Hall, was highly successful, bringing in some seventy to eighty pounds, the highlights being conducted tours of a doll's house loaned by Margaret Baker, and a puzzle corner run by Miriam Carter.

The trip to Compton Wyniatas went well with five cars taking nearly thirty O.S., all of whom returned and commented on the beauty of the gardens.

The early evening was taken up by the Headmaster's Report, it having been decided that the interest and importance of this deserved more time than had usually been allowed during the business meeting. This would seem to be the case as many questions were asked afterwards, the answer to one being an interesting account of the eating habits of present (and probably past) pupils.

The latter part of the evening was taken by a dance and social organised by Mike Finch and Stan Ewan, which was enjoyed by all who attended. Rockets at the Elm followed with about thirty O.S. present.

Sunday came in quietly with notably less eagerness to arrive at breakfast on time. Choral was taken by Hugh Maw, assisted by Mr. Penman at the piano.

Morning Meeting at the Gower was well attended although it took some people over an hour to get there after their activities the previous day.

After dinner Leslie Bailey organised a pig-drive. We were led to believe it was a quiet gentle walk; and so it would have been if I hadn't mistakenly gone with Peter Bailey. The walk took us behind the School past Field Barn, through Grounds Farm, down to Hill Bottom, where we turned left up to the Old Grange, and were shown the remains of a Cisterian Monastery, including the old fish pond (fishing being a sport the monks were particularly addicted to on Thursday evenings). The Monastery was built in a place "free from the violent assaults from evil men," but the Knight Templars and Black Death arrived there before us, so it is not O.S. fault there are no monks there now.

After viewing the remains we were shown round the private Chapel of the Norris family by Miss Norris. The Chapel had been built with stones taken from the old monastery and contained some interesting carvings found in the wall of a barn. This was the end of the conducted walk and O.S. returned to School by their own routes.

The President's Address was next on the programme. This is, of course, reported in full elsewhere, but was an interesting, thoughtful and well delivered address entitled "Caring Matters Most."

Evening Meeting was taken by Charles Kohler, the School Treasurer, this was not all he was going to say that evening, for during the business meeting which followed high tea, he had news of new bursary schemes for members of the Society sending children to Sibford, and also a scheme for the children of Old Scholars. The business meeting went smoothly, with Reg. Barber in the chair. His first action was to stop all smoking in the meeting, the resulting speed of the proceedings would seem to support his theory that smoking loosens the tongue.

Monday arrived (sometime after midnight) and with it another Treasure Hunt organised by Louis Wright, as always this was enjoyed by everyone, and as Louis says, "I will go on doing it as long as I can still fool you," it looks as though he has a job for life. Who was William Day anyway? The final result left Reg Barber the winner and proud owner of a sack of fertilizer.

After dinner came the unveiling of the plaque on the new James Harrod Memorial Pavilion by his daughter, Gulie Grimes. This is a fine tribute to a great Headmaster, and a great asset to the School and Old Scholars alike.

A quiet gentle walk

There was supposed to be a cup of tea after the unveiling ceremony, but some little fellow switched the boiler off. This led to some confusion and put the schedule back. It was intended to have organised games on the playing field, but when the organisers went out there they found only themselves to organise, and so gave up, it would seem that lack of publicity and the counter attraction of films in the Lab. was just too much.

After tea there was a lecture in the Village Hall on the History of the School by Leslie Thomas, with Leslie Bailey in the chair. During the lecture it was revealed that the front part of the Manor House is much older than had hitherto been thought.

After the lecture O.S. returned to the Hill for the final evening dance, it was unfortunate that the end of the lecture and the beginning of the dance clashed, this meant that the band — and a very good one it was, too — was not made full use of. The dance took a long time to warm up, but once it had warmed up it went splendidly and was enjoyed by all.

During the interval of the dance the final of the table tennis tournament, which had been running throughout the weekend, was played off, and brought to a climax a sporting weekend for Eddie Goudge who won the cup by beating John Ward.

The weekend was now drawing fast to a close and it was pleasing to see that the fears some people had over an Easter Re-union were not justified, for the weather had remained fine, generally, and although it was not a very large re-union there was a very friendly, almost family atmosphere about it.

I feel that before I finish this account I must thank all those who worked to make the weekend such a success, particularly the Committee for arranging such a wide choice of activities, and the cooking and household staff for making it such a comfortable weekend.

CAREERS IN INSURANCE

In this modern age no prudent individual or business organization can afford to ignore the consequences of misfortune or disaster. The whole world has become increasingly conscious of the need for the protection which Insurance provides and this large and prosperous industry is expanding rapidly.

OPPORTUNITY FOR A CAREER: High in the ranks of the leading Offices stands the FRIENDS' PROVIDENT & CENTURY INSURANCE OFFICES who, in recent years, have met an increasing share of this growing demand for Insurance. The organization continues to develop throughout the world, and there is ample opportunity for ambitious young men to find profitable and worthwhile careers on the Staff of the Offices, at home and overseas.

TRAINING: Adequate training facilities are provided to assist in ultimate qualification for the most senior positions. Each man on entry is placed with regard to his particular ability and inclinations, and individual training is given either in London or at Branches in the main provincial cities.

EDUCATIONAL REQUIREMENTS: The minimum standard is at least four passes in G.C.E. (O) or the Scottish Leaving Certificate (English Language, Mathematics and two other subjects), and trainees are recruited from men up to the age of 25 from Grammar and Public Schools and Universities.

PROSPECTS: Trainees receive full remuneration throughout the period of training. There are many fine opportunities for advancement with the Offices, and those who make satisfactory progress can look forward to earning substantial salaries in responsible positions while still comparatively young.

Annual General Meeting

Minutes of the Annual General Meeting held at Sibford on 17th April, 1960.

Present: The President, Vera Rollett; Secretary, Lilian Ward; Treasurer, John Taylor; and approximately 70 Old Scholars.

1. The President suggested that the Chair should be taken from the body of the Hall and Reg. Barber was appointed.

2. Greetings telegrams from absent Old Scholars, including those on the Aldermaston March, were read by the President before handing over to the Chairman.

3. The Minutes of the last Annual General Meeting held at August, 1959, which had been exhibited during the week-end were taken as read, agreed and signed.

4. The Chairman introduced the guest of the Association for the week-end, Charles Kohler, and welcomed him to our gathering. Charles Kohler is the Treasurer of the School and spoke on the proposed bursary scheme. Parents were wanting higher standards of education and general care for their children and the Committee were providing more and better buildings to give continued education. He explained the immediate need for more pupils to enable the School to run economically and urged all Old Scholars to re-acquaint themselves with the new Sibford which would offer children something better than they had had before and to speak to friends of the new image of Sibford and he gave details of the fees of the School and of the bursaries available to parents in September, 1960.

5. John Taylor, as Treasurer, presented the accounts for the year ended 31st December, 1959, details of which appeared in the magazine. John Taylor pointed out that these accounts did not show the benefit of the increased subscription. Frederick Carlton Smith proposed and Beryl Ryan seconded that the accounts for the year ended 31st December, 1959, be accepted and this was agreed. The Chairman expressed the Association's thanks to anonymous donors for contributions to our funds.

6. Louis Wright, as one of the Association's representatives on the School Committee, reported first on the result of the various appeals undertaken by him during his office as Appeal Secretary and then gave some details of the sums being spent by the School Committee on the improvements and new buildings at The Hill and the planned third Boys' House, and he supported Charles Kohler's appeal for Old Scholars to advertise the School for new pupils as Sibford must expand to survive. He reported the gift from the School Committee to the J. T. Harrod Memorial Fund of £100. The Chairman in thanking Louis Wright for his report made a suggestion with regard to a sum being paid each term with the School fees which would make the child a life member of the Association. The Treasurer objected but, finally, John Carlton Smith and Geoff. Long seconded and proposed that the Committee should discuss such a possibility and report back to the next Annual General Meeting and the Chairman would put his proposals in writing to the Secretary.

7. Frank Rollett then reported on the J. T. Harrod Memorial Fund and on the four week-end working parties which had been held since the 2nd January and of the excellent work by Old Scholars at those working parties which had led to the Sports Pavilion being ready for the official opening this week-end although the interior had still to be completed. He mentioned the great help we had had from Dick Geering from whom we had bought the structure and it was proposed that a letter of thanks should be sent to him on behalf of the Association. Frank Rollett stated that about £150 was still required and that there would be two more working parties for which volunteers were wanted and, in particular, a plumber was needed!

8. Our new Membership Secretary, John Coxon, briefly reported that 792 magazines had been sent out.

9. Our Secretary, Lilian Ward, then said that in her first year of office she felt rather a new girl at Sibford again and thanked everyone for the help and support they had given her. She read a letter from a group of Old Scholars, all of whom had attended forty or more Old Scholars' gatherings since they left School. These Old Scholars felt they would like to celebrate their forty years of membership by giving the School a new flag pole so that the Old Scholars' flag (and any other bunting on appropriate occasions) might be properly flown for at least another forty years, and they suggested that the flag pole be erected by the new Sports Pavilion. This letter was signed by Geoffrey Long, Wilfred Pollard, Arnold Kaye, Kathleen Rice, Miriam Carter, Jim Baily and Alec Norman, and the thanks of the Association were expressed for this. Thanks were expressed to Hugh Maw and the Bursar and all others who had made the School so warm and comfortable for our week-end. Old Scholars particularly appreciated the comfort of the Senior Girls' Common Room with its log fire and armchairs, and flowers, the latter provided by our President. Welcome was expressed to a number of Old Scholars who were with us this week-end and whom we had not seen for some time. Finally, our Secretary reported that it was felt that we must do something as an Association to cement the relationship between ourselves and the present scholars and it had been suggested that as many Old Scholars as could should visit the School on the last Sunday of term to take the leavers out and get to know them and the Headmaster had agreed to this for the 17th July, 1960.

10. The Chairman then expressed thanks to the Magazine Editor and explained that one reason why the magazine appeared to be late this year was that we were having an Easter gathering after last year's August re-union which had not left a lot of time. Under our present Rules Ron Quinton and Judith Davidson retired from the Committee and, after voting, Shelagh Kinnish and Reg. Barber were elected to serve for three years in their place.

11. Our President then spoke of the tremendous amount of work John Coxon had done for our Association for a great number of years in many capacities, and it had been felt that his retirement last year from the office of Secretary should be marked by the Association, and a record player was presented to John who expressed his grateful thanks on behalf of himself and his family and he said how he now appreciated coming back to Old Scholars and being with his family, freed from the office of Secretary.

12. The President then proposed John Coxon as President for the year 1960-61 and this was carried unanimously with applause.

13. Under the heading, "Any other Business," Arnold Kaye raised the question of the origin of our colours and it seemed that over the years they had got somewhat changed and confusion had been known to arise, one Old Scholar having been taken as an officer of the Metropolitan Police Force! The Colours Secretary was to look into the matter and to report. The Secretary stated the next re-union would probably be in August, 1961, but that we hoped once the new school houses were erected we should be able to revert to having some gatherings at Whitsun. The Chairman in closing stressed the great importance of our gatherings together at Sibford and of the need to increase our members. He then thanked all the officials and the meeting was formally closed.

Proposed New Rules of the Association

"The Committee consider it desirable to modernise our Rules without being too lengthy and formal and the following are the suggested new Rules which will be discussed and voted upon at our next Annual General Meeting in August, 1961. # The Expanding Sibford

"Sibford Must Expand" said The Friend on 25th March, 1960, and later gave details of how this was to be done, in which worthy cause the boys spent the last night of the Summer Term sleeping on mattresses on the floor so that the builders could start first thing next day to convert the dormitories of the Hill into a new Art Room, Pottery Room, five new classrooms and a Masters' Common Room. The Old Art Room is now a Metal Workshop, and the Woodwork Shop improved and reorganised. How the work was completed in time for the School to reopen as advertised, is a matter of mystery to your reporter who visited Sibford five days before the start of the new term; but somehow it was ready, as were the new houses which were officially opened by Sir Hugh Foot, former Governor of Cyprus, on Saturday, 15th October, 1960.

"We are met in gratitude for the past and to encourage those who work and live here now, and to show our faith in the future of the School." So said George Hutchinson, opening the gathering, and thanked Ronald Lloyd, former Chairman of the School Committee for all he had done and was doing, and outlined the progress of Sibford's expansion since the war. He then welcomed Sir Hugh Foot and Lady Foot, who were received with great applause.

Sir Hugh immediately claimed his kinship with Sibford by reminiscing of his schooldays at the associated, but rival establishment of Leighton Park, saying that in his day the uniform was a bowler hat and a big white "cabbage" collar that rested on his shoulders. He commented wryly, "I well remember that article of torture." Easing his own collar, your reporter had fellow feelings. Sir Hugh went on to tell us that he had been brought up in a Methodist home, and on returning from Church he was expected to know the text. His text for this occasion was, "Everything must have a beginning, but it is the continuing unto the end that yields the true glory," adding that these words had often helped him at difficult times, especially during his term of governorship of Cyprus.

Amongst other stories was one about the difficult times in 1940-41 when Britain's prestige was very low, and things were going badly for us in the war. He was then Assistant British Resident in Amman, and made the regular daily habit of going down to the Post Office for mail and chatting with the local population. Knowing how bad things were, he was often tempted to break this routine, and felt at the time that he was not making much contribution to the war effort, but "Continuing unto the end" paid high dividends, for he learned afterwards that his regular daily excursions did much to bolster the morale of the local population, for they felt that if he was carrying on as usual, things could not be as bad as they were reported to be.

He concluded by repeating his text, which he said was from Sir Francis Drake, and said, "We know about this School and the efforts that have been made here and we know of the opportunity of taking these efforts still further . . . I wish you all well in the future."

Hugh Maw then thanked Sir Hugh for his great kindness in coming to open the new buildings, for he was a busy man, and spoke of the high esteem in which he was held by the troops as he had heard at first-hand from a soldier serving in Cyprus to whom he gave a lift. He,

Hugh Maw, asked the soldier to give his respects to the Governor, not meaning it too seriously. But the soldier replied that he could quite possibly do so, saying that the Governor was the kind of chap who would speak to anyone.

Hugh Maw then thanked all those who had contributed to the building of the new Dormitory Houses, contributions of faith and trust as well as building skill, and mentioned especially Fred Gregory, the architect.

The meeting then adjourned to the new Penn House, at the entrance to the New Road, where Sir Hugh drew aside the Old Scholars' flag and revealed the name, after which parents, Old Scholars and visitors were free to inspect the building.

For those who have not yet seen these magnificent new Houses, they each comprise a flat to accommodate the House-Master and his family, and there is also a bedroom and sitting-room for an unmarried Assistant Master. Each house sleeps forty boys; the junior boys sleep in a twelve-bed dormitory, the other boys in four six-bed dormitories, and the Prefects in a four-bedded room which has been furnished with tables and chairs for use as a study. A particular feature of the dormitories is that each boy has his own wardrobe. There is also a large Common Room attractively furnished, with a tea room in which the children can make hot drinks in the evening.

The two so far built are named Penn and Nansen respectively, the latter being situated on the Hook Norton Road, between the Old Field gate and the new Council houses. We look forward to the further expansion of Sibford to include the third House to accommodate the boys of Lister, and ultimately to new Houses for the girls on similar lines, which we hope will not be long delayed.

School Committee

As I write this report this year, I look back over the period that I have been on the School Committee and realise the tremendous amount of work that has been accomplished in that time.

About two years ago the School Committee was faced with a situation in which they had to decide the very future of Sibford: should they try to carry on as before, until inevitably rising costs forced the School to close due to the fees becoming prohibitive, or should the School expand and thus absorb the rising costs. I am pleased to say that the Committee decided on the latter, and have converted the dormitories at the Hill into classrooms and built two new Dormitory Houses for the boys, which were opened by Sir Hugh Foot on 15th October.

The School is already looking ahead and places for children are in demand. The Committee is now thinking in terms of a third House for boys and, I hope, with the vision to foresee Houses for the girls as well.

The signal is set; now it is up to us to go ahead and help the School as much as we can.

Presidential Address

The formal way to begin an address would be—"Old Scholars, I find it a great honour — etc." So often is this form of introduction used that when I rise, as I do on this occasion — the emphasis on the sincerity of words is somewhat spoiled. Fortunately, each of you know what an honour this is — and for me especially so.

The range of subjects is so vast, I can only say that although I have various concerns at heart — I find a difficulty only when I realise that like so many of you that are concerned about so many things—in choosing one in preference to another.

The campaign for Nuclear Disarmament—The situation that exists in Africa—The problem of the Refugee—Care for the Old Folk—The Teenage Problem—all require a special knowledge and would take much more time than I have at my disposal, and so I propose to condense them into one complete whole—if that is at all possible—I think it is. Put simply it is—Caring matters most.

A new language has developed the theme "I couldn't care less" and, whilst this has become a common attitude to certain problems, it is only true that because of it, we are in danger of losing — not only our purpose in life but more importantly — our awareness of our common problem. —Caring about others.

The Duke of Edinburgh underlined this observation when he opened a college of Social Science, he said, "The most exasperating thing about Human Beings is that they insist on behaving — like Human Beings."

I remember when I was at School in the Fifth Form, we had in our Headmistress, a person who was so conscious of creating this feeling of awareness, and who experimented in different schemes to cause us to put ourselves in the place of others. You will know of her keen International interests and her sharing of their importance with us. I would like to remind you of one of her ideas. Although at this time the League of Nations was a clearing house for International disputes and we were encouraged to read what was going on, Mabel Harrod was not satisfied that this in itself was sufficient. At a particular time each week, out of School hours, we would meet in the old gym. with her, and each member of the form would represent a country for the purpose of putting that country's point of view. In this way, we were not only learning about the working of the League of Nations, we were being taught to consider another's point of view. Being taught to care about what was happening to others.

I find a useful thing to do is to be able to quote an authority particularly when one is trying to point out that a more important person has said—more or less—that, which one readily recognises as identical with one's own point of view. Harold Loukes writes in his book Friends and their children:

"The most important help that parents can give in developing a working philosophy is to demonstrate that one works. Do we deal with people as if we believe in their potentialities for good, or do we live a protected life in which we safeguard ourselves against the power to work us harm?"

Do we in the infinite series of trivial actions of which our lives are made, habitually stop to look at the situation from the other persons point of view. Do we really forgive, or do we shrink back in disapproving self justification—those who grow up with us cannot escape the infection of our courage or timidity, nor fail to set to work with the tools of living we habitually use.”

This caring is with us throughout our lives — whether we care for the right things or the wrong is developed through our attitudes and ideals. If we cherish right ideals we do in turn extend these ideals to those with whom we come in contact—in caring for people who are subject to misery and pain, we can share these to the extent of making them less acute — conversely if we care for the joy and beauty of life, we also share in and with those who have found them.

Often I think of that picture illustration—“I cried when I saw a man with no boots until I saw a man with no feet.”

The point of this reminds me that there are degrees of concern, and because of this, one is required to keep a balanced sense of one’s responsibility towards society—and to world events.

This business of caring can be carried to excess, but if we care only for those whom we know and like, yet often a more difficult thing to do is to care for those whom not only we have no acquaintance with, but too often little knowledge of their difficulties. This can be seen if we are asked to care for those who are aged, but it is more difficult to do when we are told about the people of Korea, Africa, Hungary, etc.

Whilst we may feel that certain things are wrong and that one’s sympathy and understanding are required — the question we must ask ourselves is WHAT CAN I DO ABOUT IT? Many such instances will supply us with the answer which is also a question. Well! what can I do about it? And so we go on feeling bogged down by events.

It is fair (I think) to suppose that is how Mahatma Ghandi must have felt about the problem of the teeming millions in India. How Albert Scwheitzer felt about Africans, when he was faced with world fame in his own right and gave this up to start the hospital at Lambarene. How, too, Gladys Alyward a mere servant girl, felt about the call to Christianity. Our Friend, John Hoyland, and International Works Camps, and who in the winter of his busy life still found something he could do, carried on making teddy bears, the money from which went to help the needy in other countries. There are, of course, many more instances, Reg. Reynolds, Father Huddleston, Michael Scott, each of you will know of someone, somewhere, quite possibly many of them have not had public acclamation — and for that many do not seek.

The business of caring is often an unattractive one, and because of that is equally often a much more difficult concern. I would suggest that there is little reason to be morbid about this, indeed the more depressing the job, the greater the need for a cheerful disposition. I am reminded of the young woman who gave quite a lot in life to tend for the sick. Nursing these days is a much more enlightened profession than it was only a few years ago. But it is still a fact that love and understanding, sympathy and skill, patience and gentleness are as important for the nurse as is surgical knowledge and experience for the doctor.

Some of us this weekend have probably felt the cold and pulled a chair up to the fire in the common room, even the mining industry is one that has advanced from the days of children toiling in the mines to a more hygienic profession.

Because somewhere—somebody cared.

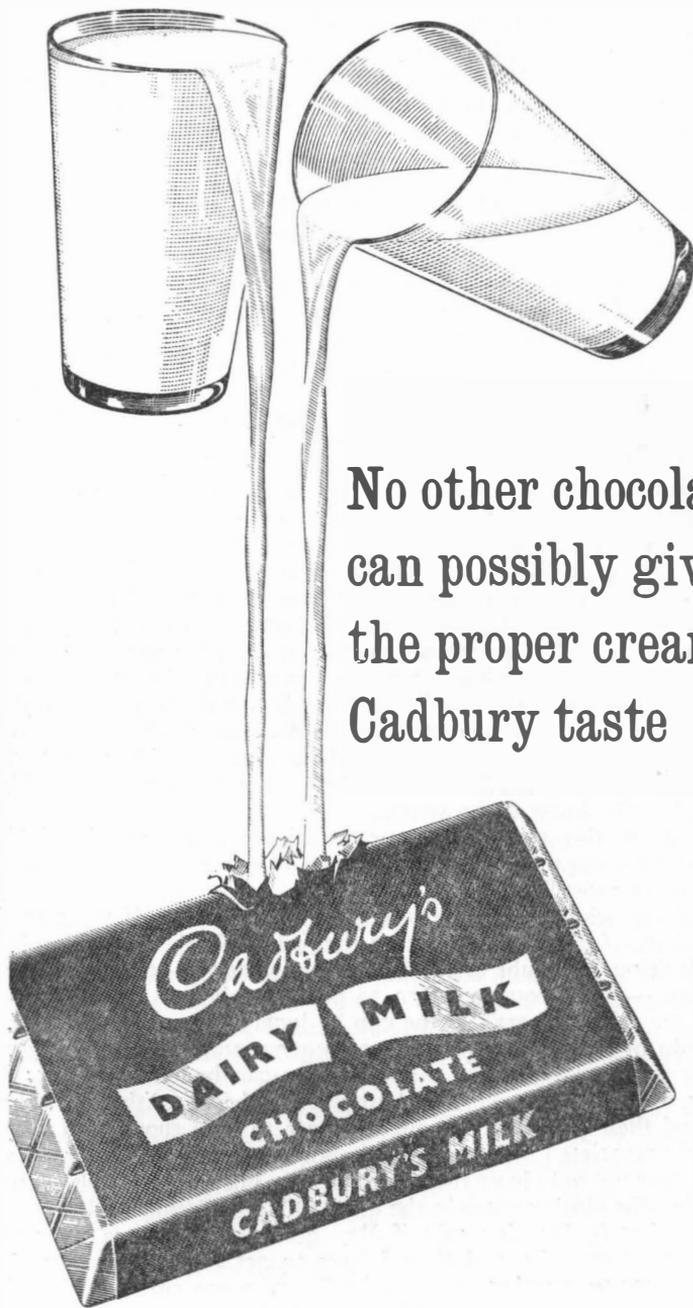

The parable of the good Samaritan has been summed up since the words "If there is any good that I may do—let me do it now—for I may not pass this way again."

There will be many here who remember Fred Sheldon who, as you know, was bed-ridden for many years—on visiting him one found him happy and always interested in everything that went on around him, although he could scarcely move, yet his concern was not for himself—rather for the many matters that he read of in the press—what could he do one may ask; he told me—"I can always pray." In such circumstances one knows the real sense of humility.

None of this is meant to say—one must go out and do something good—for the sake of it. Rather is it the never-ending question, What can I do? We are given, and sometimes to our discomfort—a conscience. This conscience is the thing which persistently calls upon us to do, or not to do. We also, in living our lives, gain what we know as our "conviction." Of this it has been said, "You do not hold a conviction—a conviction holds you." In conscience we battle between the good and the evil. In our convictions we are usually more adamant. We have "the courage of our convictions" we say, but whether in conscience we carry them out is usually a matter of whether it would make our relationship with others more satisfactory. I make this point because, as some of you will remember, Eileen Fletcher had the courage of her conviction and as uncomfortable as the issue would be—her conscience forced her to declare what she knew to be wrong.

Often enough, this tussle with our conscience can result in sinking our personal comforts to enable the comforts of others to be established. "Caring matters most."

The problem which faces the young people of today is what to do with themselves. Are we satisfied that that which is the general rule—cinemas, television and clubs are sufficient in themselves—or do we pause and ask them—or encourage them to pause with us, and consider, "Where do we go from here?" One can be lonely in a crowd—or if one sits and thinks of the many joys and too frequent sorrows, the happiness of youth, or the shadow of winter in life—one can be crowded out. In other words, one can forget one's own troubles in sharing with others their problems, and their pleasures. In our attempts to help those with whom we are closely associated, it is, perhaps, important to remember that those who are younger not only have their peculiarities, but their difficulties, too. Consider this—the closing entry in the diary of Anne Frank, "Oh I would like to listen, but it doesn't work; if I'm quiet and serious everyone thinks it's a new comedy, and then I have to get out of it by turning it into a joke, not to mention my own family, who are sure to think I'm

No other chocolate
can possibly give you the proper creamy
Cadbury taste

ill, make me swallow pills for headaches and nerves, feel my neck and my head to see whether I'm running a temperature, ask if I'm constipated and criticise me for being in a bad mood. I can't keep that up: if I'm watched to that extent, I start getting snappy, then unhappy, and finally I twist my head round again so that the bad side is on the outside and the good on the inside, and keep trying to find a way of what I would like to be, and what I could be if . . ."

I once heard a story about a child who had attended his first Sunday School, and returned home somewhat peeved. His mother, wondering how he had taken to this new adventure, asked the question, "Well, how did you like Sunday School?" The boy pondered a moment, then—"Oh, I don't think I shall go again!"

"Oh, why?" asked his mother.

The boy replied, "They can't make their minds up—stand up—sit down—stand up—sit down—stand up—all afternoon."

Many of the things which we do are not so easily understood and this story illustrates how a simple thing can be a serious obstacle in training—it is not only with the young that we need to be careful. A coloured preacher was invited to talk to a gathering of people and somewhat to his dismay found that the whole of the congregation was white. Having been versed in the usual approach of—"My coloured brethren . . ." etc., he began his address in the somewhat startling manner "My anaemic brethren . . ." The circumstances that we find ourselves in are often responsible for such slips. Of course all things can be overdone and in this I am reminded of another story in which a Parson, quite young and inexperienced, gave what he thought to be the best sermon of his young life. It was obvious that the lesson had not "gone home." He spoke to his father about this and asked for advice. The older man said quite simply, "If you have a message at all — don't throw the book at them—just be yourself!" Yes, probably that is the secret—to be just ourselves! If we care at all, we can only show it through ourselves and that requires us to sink our ego's and let the light that is within us, our own personality, come through.

There are so many calls on our conscience and on our time that it is difficult to know what to put first. If we are to retain any semblance of humanity, surely the things which matter most, should receive our first attention. If we really feel that caring matters most then all that which is in need of our care and attention will make it's demand upon us, at times it may even require that we take a firm stand on matters of principle, at others that we can enter into and share the experience of others. In this way we become part of the whole rather than separate entities, none of us are stereotypes — our differences being in our personalities. The stuff that dreams are made of may be contained within a play but the world on which human dramas are set has no props — no cast—and the only music that is worth while listening to is written in the many languages of all the people of the world.

Let us listen, there may be much that we shall not understand, or even like, but if we continue to care, perhaps we shall recognise something that resembles harmony.

VERA ROLLETT.

Birth of the "Machine Age"

Arranged to go into publication for the first time with the Prime Minister's call to British industrialists to increase their flow of exports to the world, the international industrial news-magazine, Machine Age, was officially launched from the Savoy Hotel, London, with a personal speech by Sir Charles Hill, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Minister for Overseas Information Services, and a written message of good wishes from the President of the Board of Trade.

In March, 1960, Sibford Old Scholar, Francis P. Thomson, was selected to edit the sections of Machine Age which tell the world about British achievements in nuclear, hydro, coal, oil and diesel electric power station generation and to describe all that is new and meritorious in scientific and technical instrumentation, new materials and fuels including nuclear fuels.

Francis, who uses his second Christian name "Paul" for his technical writing and lecturing activities, says that visiting firms and seeing all the new and wonderful developments Britain is exporting to other countries is a most exhilarating experience. All his editorials in English are flown to Geneva for translation into French and to Hong Kong for translation into Mandarin Chinese.

Nearly 25,000 copies of the English edition of Machine Age are printed in England for distribution to the English-speaking parts of the world. Ten thousand copies from Geneva are sent to French language readers in many countries. Over 10,000 copies of the Chinese language edition are distributed all over the Far East and 4,800 copies are actually distributed within Communist China with the full co-operation of their government.

Arrangements to open offices and have local language editions are far advanced in six other language regions, including a Russian edition from Moscow. Machine Age is devoted entirely to describing and publicising devices, materials and equipment for a tranquil world.

Review of Developments at Sibford

As I write this report in the Summer holidays there are the distracting yet strangely disturbing and exciting sounds of hammering, pulling down, building up and change. As things start to take shape in feverish haste we begin to see a fresh vision of the future. People will hardly recognise the new Sibford when they come back.

How did it all begin? In my various public reports this year I have tried to explain how, in 1960, we began venture V referred to in the Appeal. Old Scholars never tire of going back over the history of the School, and for many of the following facts I am indebted to Leslie Baily, Leslie Thomas, Alfred Holland and Margaret Baker. A great deal of information from their researches was summarised and displayed last Whitsun at the magnificent Local History Exhibition and in the little booklet, "From Romans to Rock 'n' Roll," by Leslie Baily. Venture I began in 1842 with a family school of about forty children which was practically self-supporting. There were two Staff—Richard and Rebecca Routh. Their salary bill was £80 a year and fees ranged from £6—£16. The annual report and budget therefore must have been a fairly simple matter.

In Robert Oddie's pioneering days forty years later, the Staff increased to six but the School remained small to begin with and very much a family affair. Staff salaries came to £447 and fees rose, ranging from £14 to £28 — they nearly doubled in fact. At this point I feel I must pay tribute to the tremendous support and encouragement I have continuously received from Robert Oddie's two daughters, still living in the village, overlooking Oddie's field where our hair-raising winter sports take place in the January snows. Edith and Helen Oddie identified their father's writing from a scripture lesson, dated 1884, discovered on a blackboard in what is now the Senior Girls' Common Room at the Manor while redecoration was in progress. Leslie Baily has established through interesting correspondence in the press that it was about 1881 that some of the earliest co-educational classes in the country were held, probably in this room, and this scripture class may well have been one of them.

By 1912, some thirty years later in James Harrod's time, while the Staff had grown to about ten, the number of pupils rose to ninety-six, a pupil/teacher ratio of  $9\frac{1}{2}$ . The total salaries in James Harrod's careful hand written accounts amounted to £754, today's average for one teacher. Fees had doubled again. In the expansion programme the Manor House was extended. The practical subjects were pioneered and in 1920 pupils were entered for the School Certificate Exams.

By 1932, twenty years later, Venture III had started under Arthur Johnstone, with the Hill building. There was expansion to meet what was to be a growing demand. The number of pupils had risen to 120. Though the Staff had only increased to twelve it included, and still includes, I am glad to say, that exceptionally fine teacher, Gladys Burgess. Three decades of Old Scholars will remember her and with her the sense of continuity in the School lies. The salary bill had trebled to £2,533 and fees had again doubled. It was always A.J.'s policy to keep the fees at their absolute minimum in order not to debar any Quaker child from such an education. There followed a period of consolidation, such as we now look forward to again. Academic standards rose and twenty-four years later, just before I came, numbers had risen to 202, including 180 boarders, the Staff had increased to eighteen, but salaries had increased five times to £12,171. Though the School was almost being run on a shoe string, fees at £213 had quadrupled! The Staff/pupil ratio had risen to one to eleven at a time when more and more individual attention was necessary for these "war-time" children. It appeared that about one-third of the pupils were from broken or disturbed homes—the post-war "bulge" was passing through, though over half the pupils were Friends' children. It seemed to me that the essential family atmosphere of Sibford was disappearing. Problems of supervision increased as, so it seemed, did the hours and duties of the Staff. Nationally the working week was getting shorter and wages in industry were attracting many teachers, particularly in Maths. and Sciences. In the next three years with the extra visiting music Staff we had increased the Staff to twenty-two and their salaries to £16,103. It must also be remembered that we now have a non-teaching Staff of about forty with a Bursar in charge. With pupils rising to the 220 mark the essential pupil/Staff ratio was improved. At the same time, however, we were faced with rapidly rising costs and even more rapidly increasing deterioration of building and equipment, so fees had to rise steeply to keep pace. Everyone hopes they will never have to rise so much again. We owe a debt to the Friends' Schools' Bursars for working out the new joint bursary scheme virtually insuring now that any Quaker parent desiring a Quaker boarding school education for their children will be able to manage it financially though, no doubt, some sacrifice will still have to be made. We are equally keen to help Old Scholars all we can. But in connection with money it is interesting to note that whereas the income and expenditure account in A.J.'s third year had risen to £8,000, in mine it had risen to over £50,000. I think it can be seen that what we are doing is not extravagant or lavish and is not luxurious by any means, but a necessity. It is an expression and vision of faith and it is in line with the tradition of the past. The new buildings, alterations and equipment are modern and simple, yet they fit naturally into the countryside, and we are re-creating the family and home-like atmosphere. About all our developments this year I have had a very strong feeling: "This is right." The planning became exciting and took on life. The bits and pieces of a bewildering jig-saw puzzle began to fall into place, to fit and to take shape. We owe much to our architect, Fred Gregory, for his concern, to the Quaker Trusts and individuals who have so nobly backed and encouraged us financially and to the Bursar and other Old Scholars. 1960 will be remembered as a year of tremendous upheaval, energy, drive and creative activity. So we saw the Mayor of Banbury cutting the first turf of the new boys' dormitory houses, the bulldozers cleaning the sites in the orchard and by the Hook Norton Road across the playing fields on the newly acquired piece of land. We were able to buy this land from the Council through the generosity of an Old Scholar in his will. Then the builders came and the trench digging began in the Winter's mud, and as the Autumn leaves fell bricks and mortar rose.

In the meanwhile during each holiday the Hill was improved. The new Cookery room with its eight bright and modern kitchen units was opened and the Science Laboratory was modernised. The new recreation room and playground also proved a great success and benefit.

On the last night of the Summer term the boys slept on their mattresses on the old dormitory floors. All the furniture from the top floor of the Hill was stored in classrooms below. As the boys went off for the holidays the builders moved in and the reorganisation began. The old art room is being turned into the new metal workshop and Martin Dodsworth (O.S.) and his family has arrived to start this subject. The woodwork shop is also being reorganised and improved. Art moves into Morland dormitory with pottery next door. Gillett dormitory becomes three new classrooms and on the central block the O.S. room is equipped for technical drawing. Two new classrooms in Clark dormitory and a new Masters' Common room are also to be found over the central block. They are all now in use but the decorating will have to be completed in future holidays. The two new houses for forty boys each were officially opened by Sir Hugh Foot on 15th October.

Though in the past the boys have, perhaps, been worse off than the girls, we are by no means satisfied with the girls' accommodation and there is a very great deal to be improved in this direction at the Old School. We also long for the time when we can have better changing rooms and cloak rooms at the Hill, and when the music can find a permanent home, and when we can start Rural Science. Much of these future plans will depend on the results of the Appeal and on keeping the School full.

I cannot fail to mention the gratitude of the whole School to the Old Scholars for the Harrod Memorial Pavilion. That the money was raised for this, and that it was planned, designed, built and erected by voluntary spare-time work parties, is a tremendous tribute to the spirit of the Old Scholars' Association, and a very impressive factor when showing prospective parents round the School. There is no doubt that the face of Sibford is changing. For many it is already unrecognisable, but it is all fitting and toning in, and none of the essential beauty of Sibford is being spoiled, in fact it has, we hope, been added to.

Old Scholars will be sorry to learn that Elizabeth Foster-Brown died in May of this year. She was Editor of the magazine in 1907, and the only woman to precede Mavis Stiles and myself in that Office; she was also President from 1916-1919. I do not think that any Re-union took place without her sending a telegram or letter of greeting if she was unable to attend herself.

I have also heard that Mary E. Johnson and Wilton Dixon have passed away, the latter in 1953.

Kathleen L. Rice

The O.S.A. suffered the loss of one of its most eminent members when Kathleen Louise Rice died after a long illness, on 2nd October, 1960, at the age of 58. Her gifted personality and great character will be sadly missed by those who knew her well. These qualities were shining through right to the end as she persistently enquired about others, never mentioning her own plight.

Born at Bishop Auckland, daughter of Frank Snow (himself an O.S. President), Kay became, in 1912, the youngest pupil at Sibford and stayed there three years. Thence back to Bishop Auckland Secondary School, and on through Senior Cambridge, from which she graduated to pupil teacher at Sibford, where she soon made her mark as a good hockey player. Also at this time it came apparent that she possessed a fine mezzo soprano voice. After a year there, she underwent a three year gymnastic teaching course at Bedford College, followed by a post at Hanley High School. Henceforth her abilities truly blossomed: becoming a member of Stoke Repertory Players: representing North Staffs. at both tennis and hockey: singing operatic leads in various companies: and marriage to Charles Rice, having two sons, John and Michael.

Moving to Tickhill in 1944 Kay has been very prominent ever since, in local, social, and cultural spheres.

There was never a more ardent O.S. than Kathleen and Re-unions for some thirty years have been enhanced by her activities. Who could forget her beautiful voice, histrionic talent, leadership of Old Time Dancing, or undying allegiance to the rites of Rocketry. Our gratitude was shown in 1944 when she was elected President.

Although this brief notice might give some indication of ability and achievement her acquaintances were always impressed by her extraordinary charm and kindness, and the rarer quality of wisdom.

Membership Secretary's Report

It may interest Old Scholars to know that in November, 1960, there were on our records 580 Ordinary Members, 304 Life Members and five Honorary Life Members, making a total of 889 members of the Association.

The 1959 Magazine was sent C.O.D. to eight members, all of whom accepted and so paid their outstanding subscriptions.

We are still short of copies of the 1958 and 1959 Magazines—if any Old Scholar can spare their copy of either of these—please send them to me.

I have received many interesting letters from Old Scholars overseas. These are being collected into an album which will be available for all to see at Re-unions.

London Branch

The year opened on 9th January when twenty-nine members met for the Christmas Party and A.G.M. at Campbell Hall. Games, colour slides and an excellent supper were enjoyed by all. The next three events, on 5th March, 14th May and 18th June, were invitations to the homes of George and Celia Law, John and Lilian Ward and Frank and Lilla Phillips. Varying numbers met at these social events where table-tennis, billiards, colour slides, light conversation and generous helpings of food were much enjoyed and appreciated. Over fifty Old Scholars gathered for the annual cricket match at Jordans on 26th June. We were pleased to have with us the Coxons and Gibbins from Birmingham, and the Hollands from Sibford. Despite the efforts of George Bunney, and the help of a very good tea, we lost 62 to 110. A perfect summer's day ended with an excellent supper on "Lyndhurst" lawn, kindly provided by the Ryans, aided by the Wrights.

Future Events. A cricket match at Sibford, a river picnic, a ramble in Epping Forest, and lastly a tea and "record" party. Old Scholars will be pleased to know that there are now nearly eighty members.

JEAN MOORE AND ROBERT GROOM.

Birmingham Branch

Unfortunately, there have been no gatherings this year due to lack of interest and support. We hope to restart in 1961, when we will do our utmost to stimulate new interest in our Branch. The Secretary will be very interested to hear from any local Old Scholar on this matter, whether it be ideas or criticism.

The Manor House

The age of that part of Sibford School now known as The Manor House has, at last, been cleared up. A short local history of Sibford and district entitled, "From the Romans to Rock 'n' Roll," published by Sibford Village Hall Committee, states:

In 1839 we find Joshua Lamb (grandfather of the Joshua Lamb who died in 1943) walking to Oxford from Sibford to consider with other Quakers the establishment of an agricultural school in the Midlands. A Committee representing the Society of Friends in Berks, Oxon, Bucks and Northants was formed to seek premises for a school, "to afford," as an old deed puts it, "a plain, useful guarded, religious and moral education with board, lodging and clothing to children, both male and female." The house they finally chose was the "Great House," as it was locally known at Sibford Ferris, built by Thomas Walford in 1666, in the reign of Charles II. The front part of the house, on either side of the big front door, is today practically as it was in 1666 (the year of the fire of London), its beautifully-cut masonry unmarred by the passage of three centuries. At the rear were barns and a farmyard when the Friends bought it in 1842. During the intervening years the Walford family had left Sibford (the last "Squire" Walford went about 1800) and the house had passed through various hands; Joseph Harris now sold it to be turned into a school, for £1,200. Those signing the conveyance for the School Committee were Joseph Ashby Gillett and Henry Beesley, of Banbury, and John Enoch, of Sibford Gower.

The booklet from which we take this quotation may be bought at Sibford for 1s. 3d., or by post at 1s. 6d., or from The Bursar, Sibford School.

Until its publication it was generally assumed that the original building was Georgian. The deeds, which are now kept at Friends' House in London, were examined, and the earliest date shown to be 1666—but there was nothing in the deeds to prove absolutely that the building of 1666 was not demolished or burnt down and replaced by the building mentioned in later deeds, which stands today. It seemed unlikely that anything of the sort had happened, as there is no reference in local history or lore to the Charles II building being replaced, but as legal proof of its continuity was lacking the advice of an architect was sought. A specialist on old buildings in Oxfordshire, Mr. Forsyth Lawson, examined the Manor House closely and came to the conclusion that it is the original "Great House" of 1666. He believes that the panelling in the room now used by Miss Burgess is probably the original Charles II woodwork, and that some of the windows on the road side are original, others replacements.

The first building probably stretched back from the road little more than the space of the present entrance hall, as the door giving from thence to the passage leading to the present kitchen and dining room was obviously an outside door at one time — this is plain by examination of its masonry from the passage side.

Old Scholars Abroad

From Duncan Cummins. For interest sake I wish to tell you that I was married in 1957 to a New Zealander. We met in England, got engaged in Stockholm and married in Umtali, Southern Rhodesia.

After five years forestry in England and twelve years forestry in Rhodesia, I have decided to go farming, as it makes one feel better to work for oneself.

From Marigold Parsons. It was very pleasant to receive my magazine out here in the Isolationist Mid-West.

For the record I got my diploma of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists in October and promptly decided to come over here to see the United States, where I am doing a year's Paediatrics in the Children's Hospital at Cincinnati. This is an extremely good teaching hospital and I am still amazed at American efficiency. On the deficit side, however, nursing standards come nowhere near our own and that counts a lot.

Cincinnati is an old German city of a million population, and we drain, medically speaking, Ohio, Kentucky, part of Indiana and West Virginia. It is very conservative and isolationist. We only hear about England in relation to the Royal Family.

So far I have not seen much of the country, but I hope to go to California in September and see Mexico, the Deep South and New York when I finish in January.

I expect to meet an Old Sibfordian almost anywhere, although Englishmen are scattered very sparsely in this part of the world.

I hope to see you all at the next Re-union.

* * * *

From James Grubb. It was with great pleasure that we celebrated our first wedding anniversary in October. Time seems to flash by so quickly these days that it only seems a few weeks ago that we began to build the house. It took ten months to build and twelve months to paint, now we are tackling the garden.

My parents were able to visit Sibford during the School Summer holidays and have brought me back some coloured slides of the new buildings, etc. They had a splendid six months' trip to England.

One of the most beautiful lakes in the South Island is to be flooded to an extra depth of, I think, 60 feet to make a power plant for an aluminium factory. This has created a great outcry here, but it looks as though it will have to be, in the name of progress.

If there is any Old Scholar who would like to write to me for any information on New Zealand, or just to personally correspond with me, I should be delighted to hear from them.

SIBFORD OLD SCHOLARS ESPECIALLY WELCOMED

Mabel Harrod Fund

Since the last report the Trustees have made grants to Michael Davis who recently spent some time in Sweden, and Tamara Cox who is to visit France this summer. A grant was also made to Josephine Cox, but she is unfortunately unable to make her intended trip to France this year.

During the year the Trustees have had before them the original aims of the fund and have given much thought to their right use.

As it is a number of years since a child from Europe visited Sibford, the Trustees hope that a suitable child might be brought to the School for a year's course in the near future.

The Trustees would be pleased to learn of any suitable applicant.

ALFRED J. HOLLAND.

RULES OF THE S.O.S.A.

(1) There shall be an annual reunion of members held at Sibford at Whitsuntide, or at such other time and place as may be found convenient. During this reunion the Annual General Meeting of the Association shall be held, and the decisions of this meeting shall be duly recorded.

(2) The executive of the Association shall consist of the President, secretary, treasurer, and other necessary officers. The President shall be elected annually at the Annual General Meeting. The secretary, treasurer, and other officers, shall be elected for a three year period at an Annual General Meeting. Should a vacancy occur in any office during that period, the committee shall have power to fill the vacancy, and the person appointed shall hold office until the next triennial election. (9) Any member whose subscriptions are in arrear for three years, and who after due reminder of the fact shall not make the necessary payment, may have his or her name removed from the list of members. The committee shall also have the power to remove the name of any member whose address is not known, or for any reason which the committee may decide to be good and sufficient, and such membership shall thereupon cease.

(11) Notice of any alteration or addition to be proposed in the constitution or rules of the Association shall be given to the Secretary at least 14 days before the Annual General Meeting. Nevertheless, the Annual General Meeting shall have full power to deal with any proposition, alteration or suggestion affecting the Association without such notice, or any notice, if the Meeting so decides by a two-thirds majority.
