Editorial

It is unfortunate that the last magazine that I shall edit will be received so late. It was hoped that circumstances would be kinder this year, and the magazine ready by January, but alas, it was not to be. I can only say thank you for your part in sending the copy in so promptly, which was a great help but, unfortunately, all the items were shorter than usual, and in late December the initial proofs confirmed my fear that the magazine was eight pages short. Supplementary copy was not available until January (the majority of which is printed from page 31 onwards) and, consequently, may not therefore be perfect in presentation as there will not be time for a proof.

I have enjoyed my short time as editor very much indeed; it was interesting receiving letters from friends, and hearing all the news and activities of other Old Scholars, although it was difficult to find the necessary time to deal with it during the summer and Christmas holidays, when most of the work has to be done.

On reading the Minutes of the Annual General Meeting, which I was unable to attend, I notice that criticism was made of the photographs. These were not specified, and the only letter received was from a professional editor who approved of the magazine. My comment on these matters is that if you do not take photographs and send them to the Photograph Secretary, it is useless to complain about those printed in the magazine, since the editor cannot produce them out of a hat. It would be thoughtful, too, if you named the people and events on the back of each print, as neither the editor nor the Photograph Secretary are psychic.

It is doubtful if many of you realise the amount of time, money and work that a small percentage of Old Scholars put in on your behalf. If you care to look back through past magazines you will find the same names repeated over and over again, and in many cases their only reward is criticism by those members who are not prepared to undertake an Office.

Three new names appear on the current list of Officers, and with your co-operation, assistance and helpful criticism, they may continue to appear for many years. Experience is only gained by making mistakes and, bearing in mind that they work in an honorary capacity, realise that your enjoyment stems from their efforts.

Reunion Retrospect

Opinion seems to be that our 1962 Reunion was a very successful gathering, despite the absence of some familiar faces and the unavoidable limiting of numbers. With staff and two hundred and sixty pupils resident, it could have been no easy task to achieve this success, and congratulations and thanks are due to those who so unobtrusively made it possible.

What follows is, of course, a personal impression of the Reunion, and if we have spread ourselves in some directions and telescoped too much in others, we hope you will forgive us. And we hope your imagination will supply you with the background of all Sibford Reunions—the gatherings on the prom, the continuous game of cricket on the boys' playground, the hubbub in the dining-room (this year the junior girls' common-room, formerly the "gym"), the joy of meeting old friends, the walks through the paddock, and the pleasure of those of us who live in cities in being able actually to see the stars on our walk late at night to the Elm.

There are, looking back after a few weeks, some vivid memories: our hardworking President, Gladys Burgess, looking and sounding not a day older than in the early nineteen-thirties: the Headmaster, Jonas Fielding, putting us through our paces in Choral: Old Scholars eating their meals from locker-tops; the incredible sight on the sports field of fifteen or so Old Scholars crammed into a single bunk; kettles steaming over the wood fire at the picnic; the warmth of the hymn-singing in evening Meeting.

But, to start at the beginning. The sun was shining and the sky was blue when we began to arrive at Sibford. No doubt many of us were wondering where we should eventually lay our heads that night (or next morning!) and we hurriedly consulted the notice-board in the Archway. We found that only about forty-five had asked for beds, more than half of whom had been allotted bunks in Holmby House (now the residence of the Rollett family), these being the single—if only temporarily—and presumably tougher ones; those who had the foresight to bring their marital partners were provided with real beds in the village or in school premises. There were others, not on the list, who camped up behind the Hill, or had found their own accommodation further afield.

Our programme got off to a flying start with the Presidential dinner, at which eighty Old Scholars were welcomed by Gladys Burgess. It was at this meal that Jonas and Marjorie Fielding, the new Headmaster and his wife, were introduced to us.

As at other meals this weekend (and in the past), the well-known figure of our Treasurer was seen tracking down with practised skill those who had yet to pay for their food. One Old Scholar, a member of the School staff who shall be nameless, discovered that she had omitted to book for any Old Scholar meals and had to queue for a seat!

Many Old Scholars, as well as parents visiting their children at School, made an audience for the cricket match, which the S.O.S.A. won: score, S.O.S.A. 105 for 4 declared; School all out for 96. Tea, very welcome, was served from the sports pavilion.

Before supper, we made our way to the Hall for the Old Scholars' entertainment to the School, a riotous pantomime, "Cinderella," performed by the Birmingham group. Compèred by Graham Trout, this poetic creation had two charming "Ugly Sisters" (Michael Finch and Pip Manasseh), a flinty-hearted stepmother (Angus Abercrombie), and an ethereal Fairy Godmother (Frank Rollett), as well as performances by other equally well-known actors in the S.O.S.A. repertory. The whole thing was a roaring success, and concluded with singing, by audience and cast, of a new School song, calculated to recruit new members to the Association, to the tune of "Land of Hope and Glory."

The School's entertainment to Old Scholars, after supper, took the form of an orchestral and choral concert, in which Mr. Hollingworth, music master, drew forth some lovely sounds from instruments and voices. An amusing and well-acted play, "Mr. Sampson," followed.

Soup was next on the programme (oh, the indescribable smell of those plastic cups in the recreation room!), after which we returned once more to the Hall, this time for the President's Address. This appears on other pages in the magazine, so it will suffice to say that, for at least one of Gladys Burgess's audience, nearly thirty years were as if they had never been.

Although our programme said "Records," in fact we continued the process begun earlier in the day of meeting and greeting old friends, some of whom had not been seen at a Reunion for many years, including those who had returned for short or long visits to England from Canada and America. Rockets at the Elm? Of course. We personally were aware of two gatherings. Our President, having taken part in the Committee meeting which finished around 11-30 p.m., was one of a select band of the faithful whose passage to the Elm crossed that of a larger party who had already performed the mystic rite. And we heard the next day that Arnold Kaye had been the centre of yet a third circle, who had rocketed on the tennis-courts!

And so to bed, to speak only for the more middle-aged among us.

We awoke on Sunday to a greyer day than we had hoped for: but one goes to Sibford prepared for any kind of weather, hot or cold, wet or dry.

After breakfast we were soon packing the Hall to bursting point for Choral with the School. This proved to be a most stimulating occasion and, incidentally, very hard work! It was our first opportunity to see the Head "in action." Later, at the Meeting House in the Gower, Old Scholars and Senior School gathered together for an inspiring Meeting for Worship.

This Reunion we walked through the fields (or the more energetic did) to Traitors Ford, where we picnicked in a neighbouring field. It was a pleasure to have the IVth formers with us (consolation for them for not, after all, being able to take part in the Grand Reunion Dance the following day). A reluctant sun emerged from behind the clouds, and shone on our cups of tea and those trays of sandwiches and cakes. And in all directions were cameras, still and cine, focused on subjects conscious and unconscious, some, no doubt, appearing among the photographs in this magazine.

The speaker at evening Meeting at the Hill was our guest for the weekend, George Hutchinson, Chairman of the School Committee, whom we had been glad to meet informally throughout the Reunion. His theme was "Gifts," and he referred to the recent sudden death of Gerald Littleboy, Secretary of the Friends' Education Council, whose aim it had been to make possible the education at a suitable Friends' School of any child of Quaker parents who desired this.

Eight o'clock found us again in the Hall, this time for our business meeting, which school leavers were invited to attend. We remembered in a short period of silence two Old Scholars we will always miss, John Coxon and Lionel Geering. Minutes appear on other pages, so we need say no more except that, with Alfred Holland in the chair, it was remarked that, for the first time in many years, the meeting was concluded in daylight!

Rockets? Seventy-six participants this time.

On Monday morning we cast anxious eyes at the sky. The weather was really a rather important factor in the day's programme. But we need not have worried. Although cardigans and coats were de rigueur, raincoats were not. Up on the Hill field, Alan Roberts soon had scholars and O.S. competing in a continuous high-speed series of activities, including the episode of the crowded bunk: with John Taylor as a firm foundation, fifteen O.S. in sardine-like posture were found to fit in neatly, the same number as of present scholars (most of them half the size), who preferred the more orthodox upright position.

After lunch, a light-hearted swimming gala was organised for the amphibious-minded. One of the most frustrating events was a competition to see who could hold the most balloons under the water. The winner, a present scholar, managed two! We tore ourselves away from the swimming bath to join the crowds lining the road by the Manor to see the carnival procession move up by way of the Hook Norton road to the Hill. There were but seven entrants, and our President found it hard to decide on the prize-winners, all were so good. However, she awarded prizes to "St. George (sorry, St. George, you were so well disguised we couldn't recognise you!) and the Dragon," the latter emitting fearsome roars—and a few giggles; Ken and Naomi Alexander's "Flight of Fancy," an Emmett-like creation with flapping wings; Peter Bailey (and friend) in "Jonas and the Whale" (the Head was heard to say he would be claiming royalties); and Pat Flynn's "Loch Ness Monster." We hope there will be photographs available of this event—words cannot do justice to it.

The finalists in the tennis tournament, organised by John Ward, were Philippa Austin and Andy Butt, the winners, and Ken Bottom and Melody Sanger.

For the first time this weekend we entered the School dining room, for "High Tea"; fortunately, as it turned out, since 150 O.S. and School staff were there. After the winners of the tennis tournament had received their prizes, presentations were made, for all their work behind the scenes, to Leslie Tucker (the Bursar) and Arthur Harrison; and to Mr. Lee and his staff, who had obviously worked long hours and busily to supply us with such excellent food throughout the weekend.

Vth and VIth formers joined in the very successful grand Reunion dance in the Hall, the band from Birmingham keeping things going with a swing. Before they had to leave the dance present scholars were initiated into the art of rockets by Arnold Kaye; and their Head also took part in the ceremony.

A crowd of over eighty performed the ritual of the rocket at the Elm that night.

And so we went our various ways, leaving Sibford to School and villagers once more, hoping they had enjoyed our presence as much as we had loved being back again.

From Doris Parnell. David spent five very profitable years at Sibford from 1955 to 1960, and in 1961 came third out of Vickers and Armstrong's of Crayford apprentices for first year students, which to my mind was a credit to the teaching at Sibford and David's aptitude.

From Patricia Chorley. (née Williams). I am now the mother of three daughters—Joanna—who is one year, and identical twin girls who are only six days old and are six weeks premature. One is just over 4 lbs. and the other just under. We are calling them Belinda and Julia, but we are very apprehensive for them as they have given us a few scares.

First Impressions

Old Scholars' Weekend had been mentioned to me in the soft sympathetic tones that are meant to be helpful but only arouse apprehensions. I had visions of bearded beatniks on motor-cycles, of Bacchanalia at the Hill and druidical rites at the Elm. Long experience of Old Scholars' Associations (from both sides of the fence) has taught me that they can range in quality from a gathering of pathetically ageing Peter Pans to go-ahead groups of helpers whose loyalty to the School and the Head can be relied on implicitly. I wondered to which of these extremes Sibford Old Scholars would tend.

Thanks to the hospitality of the Flinns I had the good fortune to have a foretaste of things to come when in the very first week of term my wife and I met Sibford Old Scholars who live near the School. It was a wonderful gathering and a grand start to the term. From the very first meeting with the Committee of the Association I knew that Old Scholars at any rate would not be adding to the Head's worries. The Whitsuntide weekend arrived and I enjoyed every minute of it. Nothing did more in that first term to make me feel that I belonged here.

The School will need the help and support of every well-wisher in the next few years if we are to keep abreast of the times. At the same time we must hold fast to that indefinable and yet so tangible Sibford spirit. I hope that Friends will be tolerant if I try to capture something of it in the hope that it will lead each one of you to consider what you owe to the School. Consideration for others, service to the community, a delight in work well done — these are things that mark any good school. What has Sibford that is different? The first and most obvious is the great advantage we have in our beautiful setting. How much we owe also to our Quaker heritage — the long continued service of so many Friends over the years as well as the generous giving of which we have so recently had cause to be grateful. All this kindness must surely spur each one of us to ask what our responsibility may be.

We came here, many of us, unsure of ourselves; we found friendship, happiness, learned to overcome our shyness or our aggressiveness, gained confidence or lost that chip off our shoulder, learned to discipline our minds and to appreciate something of beauty. It was rare that punishment was necessary, for authority here has never been a matter of gold braid and badges unless it be that invisible badge of service. At so many other schools the Head in particular has to conform to a set pattern, but at Sibford there can be no question of this for he, too, shares this glorious freedom to be himself accepted with all his faults as into a family. Grumbled at maybe, quarrelled with perhaps, but never doubting that we belong and that only our own selfishness could shut us out.

Not a very good definition I am afraid, but perhaps it will help if I quote from Thomas a Kempis:

“Whoever loves much, does much. Whoever does a thing well, does much. And he does well who serves the community before his own interests.”

JONAS FIELDING.

Annual General Meeting

Minutes of the Annual General Meeting held at Sibford on 10th June, 1962.

Present: The President; Gladys M. Burgess, Secretary, Lilian Ward; Treasurer, John Taylor; and approximately 70 Old Scholars.

1. The meeting remembered in silence John Coxon and Lionel Geering, who had died since our last reunion. Our President read a letter received from the President of the Sidcot Old Scholars' Association, sympathising with us on our great loss on the death of John Coxon.

2. The President asked the meeting to permit her to be released from the Chair and to appoint Alfred Holland in her place and this was agreed. Alfred Holland then took the Chair of the meeting.

3. The Minutes of the last Annual General Meeting held on the 6th August, 1961, at Sibford, which were printed in the 1961 magazine, were taken as read, agreed and signed.

4. Arising from the last Minutes, the Chairman reported that the memorial to Arthur Johnstone was still under consideration by the Committee.

5. John Taylor, as Treasurer, reported that the Accounts had been exhibited during the week-end, and John Canham proposed and Arthur Harrison seconded that the Accounts should be accepted and this was agreed.

6. In the absence of our magazine editor, Beryl Ryan, John Taylor reported briefly on her behalf, apologising for the lateness of the magazine, the reasons for which were numerous. A question was asked as to the length of time the actual printing of the magazine took, but this could not be answered. Criticism was made of the photographs, and it was generally felt by the meeting that an effort must be made to have the magazine out by the end of the year if possible.

7. Our representative on the School Committee, Louis Wright, being on holiday, his written report was read to the meeting by the Secretary remarking on the many changes in the buildings at Sibford and the fine work being done by Arthur Harrison and Leslie Tucker in this respect. The hard tennis courts were under way which would be a great asset to our Association as well as to the School.

Louis Wright again asked that Old Scholars should send him details of any Old Sibfordian who was not a member, as asked by him in the 1960 magazine. (This is now an urgent request—Sec.). Louis Wright also told of the changes to be made at the Manor House to bring the girls' accommodation up to the standard of the boys. The Secretary expressed the Association's thanks to Louis Wright for the splendid work he was doing on its behalf on the School Committee.

8. Michael Finch reported as Birmingham Secretary that that branch had four meetings since last September, all of which had been well supported, and it was hoped that this support would continue.

The London Secretary was not at the reunion, but that group had had its usual gatherings during the year and the particularly successful Christmas party at Westminster Meeting House to which our President came. Patrick Flinn reported that the Sibford Group had given a welcome party to Jonas and Marjorie Fielding.

9. Martin Dodsworth reported on the Mabel Harrod Fund and of the efforts to finance a scholar from behind the Iron Curtain and of an application from a West German boy who was coming to Sibford for at least one or two terms, but Martin Dodsworth stated that they would like more applications. There was a possibility that David Smith would be going to Moscow for a week in July.

Francis Thomson suggested that a lot was being done by many other people to help Germans and suggested that efforts should be made to obtain scholars from Austria, Italy and Yugoslavia. Jonas Fielding reported that this was being attended to. Martin Dodsworth informed the meeting that the particular German application was a needy case. The Chairman informed the meeting that some three years ago an effort was made to bring a child from behind the Iron Curtain to Sibford but this was not possible.

10. The Secretary, Lilian Ward, welcomed Jonas and Marjorie Fielding on behalf of the Association and thanked them and the School Committee for all they had done in preparation for our weekend which was going so well. We were particularly pleased to have Sibford's new Headmaster and his wife with us during the weekend and were grateful to them for spending so much time with us, and we already felt that they were part of the Association. The Secretary thanked Leslie Tucker and Arthur Harrison for all their help to her and the Association in arranging the weekend.

The leavers being at the meeting it was not possible to give details of the proposed outing in July for them, except to say that it should prove most enjoyable and Old Scholars who could come were asked to get in touch with the Secretary who would give them details.

11. The following appointments for three years commencing 1st January, 1963, were made:—

1, General Secretary—Lilian Ward; 2, Treasurer—John Taylor; 3, Reunion Secretary—John Canham; 4, Membership Secretary—Monica Taylor; 5, Magazine Editor—Loraine Brown; 6, Representatives on School Committee—Louis Wright and Vera Rollett; 7, Resident Officer—Arthur Harrison; 8, Photographic Secretary—John Ward; 9, Advertising Secretary—Alan Roberts.

George Hutchinson, clerk to the School Committee (and our guest for the weekend), asked if we wished Vera Rollett to be our second representative on the Committee from the time of her appointment and not from the 1st January, 1963, and we asked that she should be so appointed.

The three retiring members of the Committee were Reg Barber, Loraine Brown and Derek Gaffee, and in their places Roger Baily, Michael Rice and Frank Rollett were appointed for three years from the 1st January, 1963.

12. Our President then presented the Head Girl, Christine Coxon and Paul Keats with an Old Scholars' badge on behalf of the Association.

13. Gladys Burgess presented the Lecturne to Jonas Fielding on behalf of the School and a suitable plate would be placed thereon stating that this was a gift of the Association to the School during the Presidency of John Coxon. Jonas Fielding in thanking Old Scholars stressed that they should not feel they had to do this for the School, but they were most grateful for the gift. In accordance with the tradition which had been revived of Old Scholars making a gift to the School each year in this way, our President stated that it had been decided to give two floodlights for the stage, and this was felt to be particularly appropriate for Gladys Burgess's year of Presidency because of her long association with this side of the School's activity. Gladys Burgess reported that it was hoped to have our next reunion in August, 1963, and she had pleasure in confirming the appointment of George Law as our President for that year and suggested Brian Wright as our Vice-President, which was agreed unanimously.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

Notes on Eldering

by the late JAMES T. HARROD, B.A.

Eldering is required for two purposes — restraint and encouragement. I know a man who began to speak in Meeting and was eldered. He never spoke again in Meetings for Worship for forty years, although he was a loyal Friend and P.M. Clerk, very sound in judgement and influence. Was it the eldering that was at fault? Yes, at first, but the influence should have been countered in short time.

Eldering for encouragement is often too easy and may unduly exalt a young speaker, unless accompanied by a determination to await a divine urge always. Is it a fact that sometimes the recognition of a speaker's gift quenches it? One good (perhaps the best) way of eldering for encouragement is by showing a happy friendliness to the speaker, without referring to his speech. From the other viewpoint the speaker must not mind in the slightest, must be quite unconscious of any lack of appreciation. Do we crave for approval? Better not.

Eldering for restraint is often difficult. Elders must recognise that their own needs are not the only ones in the Meeting and that the more erring a speaker is the more tender should be the treatment given to him. The act of eldering must wait until a solid basis of friendship exists between the concerned parties; then the hint can often be given by a reference to either the helpfulness of a speaker with a different outlook or the harm done by a speaker with the same outlook as the culprit. From the other viewpoint—it ought to be part of a regular training in membership in the Society that worship is not helped by sudden provocation, that helpfulness to others and loyalty to the common Father are essential, and that one person in a minority in a group is not always right. And, as a matter of fact, Quaker vocal ministry is a thing by itself, and an unwise speech is very often its own condemnation. Here, perhaps, is part of the answer to the query, "What is to be done when a Friend persistently disturbs the harmony of the Meeting?" Well, he may often be left to counterblast himself. Or he may wither from lack of retaliation. Silent disapproval. Or he may be approached by a very wise and loving Friend who can, by Socratic questioning, lead him to see that there is also another way of thinking. A Friend who forms a habit of popping up at the beginning of Meeting must learn somehow that other Friends may be disturbed in their united efforts to listen to God, the purpose to which the early part of the Meeting should usually be devoted. "Be kindly affectioned one to another in brotherly love" is the right spirit, though Friends may have wearied of the phrase itself. "Why beholdest thou the speck in thy brother's eye and considerest not the plank that is in thine own eye?" Every tree is known by its fruit. Against quietness and love even all hell will stand powerless.

Our President

GEORGE LAW

I was born in 1903 at Plymouth, but only because my mother happened to be there at the time, for our home was in London. Nevertheless, a few years later we moved to Plymouth where my father, a pharmaceutical chemist, had found a suitable post.

When I was eleven years old my father died and my mother, with two boys to look after, had a very difficult time. My brother, Tom, and I went to Sibford together in 1915, and my mother then started to realise one of her ambitions by training as a midwife.

At School I achieved some distinction by breaking a leg. This led to six weeks in hospital in Banbury and a long period of convalescence afterwards. During this time I had the privilege of being taken into the family circle of the Headmaster, James Harrod. I have never ceased to wonder at the kindness shown to me then and later and I shall always be grateful for the experience of living in that wonderful atmosphere.

After two years at Sibford I spent three years at Sidcot, but in spite of the longer time there I have always considered myself to be a Sibford Old Scholar. By this time my mother had qualified and was working in London.

On leaving Sidcot I had a very short business career as an office boy in an insurance office until I was able to go to the East London College (now Queen Mary College) to take an engineering course resulting in a B.Sc. (Eng.) degree.

Then the search for a job began, and after several months a friend enabled me to get a position in a small firm where I inspected the manufacture of submarine cable and later supervised the laying of it in the Pacific (salary 30 shillings per week). This did not last long — about a year — but after another lengthy period of unemployment I was able to join a large engineering firm. From that time I was in the electrical and radio business until the war, when I was directed into the radar section of the Admiralty, where I remained after the war, but expect to retire shortly.

Regarding more personal details most people will know that I am married to an ex-President of the S.O.S.A. and that we have a Sibford Old Scholar daughter and two small grandsons.

S.O.S.A. ANNUAL REUNION

By invitation of the School Committee, S.O.S.A. Annual Reunion will be held at the School over August Bank Holiday, 1963, and over Whitsun Bank Holiday, 1964.

Presidential Address

In all my years of teaching at Sibford I have faced on this, and the platform at the Old School, audiences of all kinds and on varying occasions. I have always been apprehensive at such times, but never quite so fearful as I am now in addressing you as your President. Nevertheless, I am compensated, for I have never felt so honoured as to be speaking to you in such a capacity. I do thank you, and appreciate very much indeed your asking me to undertake this for you. I feel, too, some sadness which we must all be sharing this weekend. It was your former President, John Coxon, who personally invited me to succeed him, and when I accepted, I looked forward to his support and advice, and his presence here by me this evening. During this weekend we think particularly of him as a friend, and an Old Scholar who not only did so much for the Association, but who also had the School so much at heart. And it is the memory of Old Scholars such as he which led me, perhaps, to think of my subject for this evening.

You can all call to mind breakfast on the last morning of the Summer term, when at a given moment—signal, it seemed—a procession of leavers toured the dining room, beginning at top table, shaking hands with each member of staff, and saying "Thank you for all you have done for me," or, "for all you have taught me." I have treasured many letters in which Old Scholars have expressed their thanks and appreciation, and who felt they owed much to their School. If the School is right one should carry away something of lasting value. To you, as children, encouragement was a help and a stimulus. Now, as adults, you will realise how much those expressions of appreciation have encouraged us when our work seems at times difficult and disappointing. But I wonder if you have ever thought how much the School owes you and how many lessons we, individually, have learned from you. We need only to look around us to see some of the material ways in which you have helped us—these hall and stage curtains, the stage extension and lighting, the pavilion, the avenue of trees on the way to the Hill, the craftsmanship evident in the beautiful library furniture, your gifts of books on the shelves.

Some of you have entrusted your children to us, and what an interest, indeed, an excitement, that is to me. I find myself replying to some exasperated or approving member of staff, "Never mind! Her mother was just the same!" or "He's not a patch on his father," or "his parents were clever, too." I feel very much like Badger. "I knew his father, I knew his grandfather, I knew his uncle, the Archdeacon . . ." I wonder if any of you have sent your children to us for the purpose expressed by one small girl, who, soon after her arrival announced, "My mother says I've got to stay here till the old Nick's out of me." She stayed for two terms! Whether Sibford's influence was so godly that the old Nick fled precipitately, or whether he proved too strong even for Sibford, I don't know. I never met or heard of her again. But whatever you wish from Sibford for your children I hope you will feel that your faith in us has not been misplaced. Those family loyalties and continuing interests built up through several generations are some of the supports which give the School strength and stability.

IV Form at the picnic

A number of you have served us on the staff in various capacities. At the present time we have four Old Scholars working with us and giving us great help. This we value very much.

I hope you will forgive me if I am personal and tell you of some of the lessons I have learned, or perhaps ought to have learned, and some of the things for which I am grateful; though it would surprise me if they are not applicable to all teachers, particularly in boarding schools.

“Wad the power the giftie gi’ us

To see ourselves as others see us.”

Children have that “giftie” as any mother or anyone in close contact with children know. A chance remark or a sudden outburst by a child can be revealing. I remember taking to task a very high-spirited girl, and after treating her misdemeanours rather lightly I said, “but seriously, so-and-so . . .” “Oh, yes,” she interrupted quickly, “I should never dream of taking anything you said as a joke.” Was I losing my sense of humour? One evening as I was sitting in my room there was a knock on the door, and in burst a boy with whom I had had a tussle during the day, who told me in good round terms what he thought of me, and declared that he looked upon me as some sort of ogre! No one felt less like one than I did at that moment! But I survived. He stayed for half an hour, when we parted the best of friends and remained so ever afterwards. But it made me think, and take myself to task.

How could I have given such an erroneous impression of omniscience to the one who firmly believed I knew the whole of Shakespeare by heart, or to the one who inquired if I really had read every book in the library? I felt humble at my true ignorance.

I did not imagine when I began to teach English what it would take in time and energy, or what it would give back in enjoyment and friendship. I have never forgotten taking a group of 13-year-olds to Stratford to see the first Shakespeare play they had read come to life on the stage. Those visits, although they have become traditional have lost none of their thrill and glamour.

The greatest joy of all is the plays we have performed ourselves in the old gym, at the Manor and here in this Hall. Presumptuously, with a tiny stage, one entrance, poor lighting, we envisaged “Toad of Toad Hall,” “Abraham Lincoln,” “Quality Street,” “Pride and Prejudice,” “She Stoops to Conquer,” “Twelfth Night.” Could we harness Alfred to a caravan, get him on, turn him round and, worst of all, get him off with Toad riding gloriously behind? Could a tall lanky boy of fourteen even with a large share of histrionic ability, create Abraham Lincoln? Could we ever find top hats and frock coats? Could we learn the parts? But no difficulties are insuperable when your cast and stage hands are children. When the washerwoman in “Toad” fell ill, who could fill the part but Miss Prior, they assured me, and she brought the house down! Nor can I forget when Mrs. Hardcastle developed chicken-pox the night before the performance of “She Stoops to Conquer.” The play was to be put off—but not the cast. Why couldn’t I do it, they said. Acting and producing are to me not compatible—but I consented. How everyone rallied round! My fifteen-year-old Tony Lumpkin took me in hand and we worked the whole afternoon. The enthusiasm of those children carried us through. We learned to know the stages through which a play was created — the ease and excitement of the early readings, the boredom of learning the parts, the irritations when we were tired, the temperamental actor who could ruin a rehearsal, the quick resource in an emergency, the moments of complete despair — followed almost at once by the sudden coming to life of the play and the discovery of ourselves as a close-knit group identified with the play and with each other. The thrill of those occasions, the memory of them and those who took part will always remain with me.

“Make not haste in time of trouble.” I have warned myself, often too late, of that wise saying. It is easy to jump to conclusions, to punish or act on hearsay. I can think of many occasions when I have acted too precipitately, without first investigating. I have often made mistakes and sometimes dealt unjustly with a boy or girl because I had not ascertained the facts. Many times I find a story exaggerated, a report a half-truth. At times what appears on the surface to be a serious offence may prove to be quite innocent. I wonder if parents are so easily caught by the Dickensian tales told in Sunday letters describing the shocking treatment meted out to them by some unsuspecting and quite innocent member of staff? When difficulties of discipline and personalities arise I have often found the advice and wise commonsense of a Head Girl most valuable. I never look at the Honours Board without feeling grateful for the help and loyalty of those whose names are so deservedly there.

When I am talking with leavers about their careers, how often they say, “I want to work with people.” They may not be able to give an adequate reason for their wish, but I am sure that life in a community has unconsciously taught them that though “There’s none so queer as folks,” there’s also none so eternally interesting. Young or old we have learned the same. School life may be wearing, disappointing, exasperating, even infuriating, but it is never dull. As new children come and older ones develop, life is continuously renewed; personalities change, new problems arise: every lesson, however old, every book, however well-known, is renewed in its impact on every fresh class.

To speak of the variety of personalities in a community, the variety of their behaviour, ability, temperament, reactions, interests, may be a platitude, but it is a truth which rules out monotony from the life of a teacher. There are the co-operative and the steady, who supply stability, there are the rebellious, the leaders on whom we depend, there are the weak who need guidance, the unhappy, those who crave attention and must count, even through notoriety. They are all there helping, hindering, but learning to bear with each other, to be understanding and tolerant — an education for life, for them and for us.

Amongst them are some who have serious personal difficulties, almost always through lack of security and affection, who may steal, lie, shun friendship, or build round them a wall of defence. It is easy, when there seems little improvement to despair. But sometimes in a morning reading, the words strike home—"Woe unto you who have lost patience." I know how often I have done so, but I know also that the keeping of it brings its reward, I think the greatest lesson I should have learned is never to lose faith in children and in what they may become. In failures and disappointment perhaps one's faith has not been strong enough. To watch a child come through from instability to soundness is great happiness.

Life without change breeds stagnation and, as I look back over the years, I find there is no likelihood of that at Sibford. Twopence a week is no longer sufficient pocket money, we are too sophisticated for some of the old simple pleasures, we are no longer content with bread and milk for breakfast, we have outgrown the old gym, with its gallery packed to collapsing point, we live in comparative luxury, our outings grow in number and expense. But these changes are superficial and ephemeral. We must expect and welcome change, provided we never lose sight of those standards which are constant and fundamental, because they alone are the foundation on which the good life is built. Truth, honesty, the building up of personal relationships, our faith in one another—these things abide. In so far as they are a part of Sibford they are a part which you, Old Scholars, have given and helped to build; and it is you in whom we have faith still, that you will carry them for ever into your homes and your lives.

Mabel Harrod Bursary Fund

We are very grateful to the Educational Interchange Council who have been so helpful in trying to find applicants from Eastern Europe for places at Sibford School. This has been almost impossible and the trustees decided to accept any suitable applicant from Germany.

As a result of the Council's efforts I am pleased to say that a suitable applicant has been found.

Armin Wirsing, who is sixteen and comes from Crailsheim, near Stuttgart, will be coming to Sibford for a year as from September, 1962. We look forward very much to having him here and hope that he will spend a useful and happy time with us.

Armin is at present in the VIth form at the Albert Schweitzer Gymnasium School in Crailsheim and his particular interests are history, languages and sport.

He will be in Lister House whilst at Sibford and I hope he will have an opportunity of meeting Old Scholars before he leaves and of giving you some of his impressions in the next issue of this magazine.

No grants otherwise have been made from the fund during the last year and the balance in hand at present is about £600.

London Branch

We could hardly have had a better beginning to a year of London Old Scholars' activities than the Jubilee Party held at Westminster Meeting House in January. We were grateful to Miss Burgess for making a special journey down from Sibford and to Harry Randall for entertaining us with stories of Sibford and the start of the London Old Scholars' Group fifty years ago.

At least as many O.S. enjoyed dancing, games, and Louis and Doris Wright's films of Old Scholars' Gatherings. We owe Jean Moore a very special thank you for the excellent supper and for her services as Secretary to the London Group for the past two years.

Our numbers seem to have diminished since then but a small group found a visit to Mdme. Tussaud's and the London Planetarium a pleasant diversion for a wet Saturday afternoon in March. In May we walked across the more rural parts of North London and arrived finally at the home of Michael and Wendy Van Blankenstein for tea and records.

Alas, our annual cricket match at Jordan's in July resulted in a decisive win for the Jordan's team, but as usual this was an extremely pleasant afternoon and evening. It would be impossible to give adequate thanks to Don and Beryl Ryan for their very generous hospitality. Only five members enjoyed the art and architectural beauties of Kenwood House and the picnic on Hampstead Heath in August, but between us we spanned at least fifty years contact with Sibford.

Our future events include a river trip to Greenwich in September and, possibly, a theatre or concert visit later in the Autumn. The A.G.M. and annual party will launch another year's activities next January.

HELEN EAVIS.

Birmingham Branch

This has been a good year. The Branch activities were re-opened on the 30th September, 1961, with a social evening at the Rolletts. Peter Baily enhanced the evening with coloured slides of Scandinavia. We were happy to have with us John Coxon, unknown to us this was to be his last Sibford gathering.

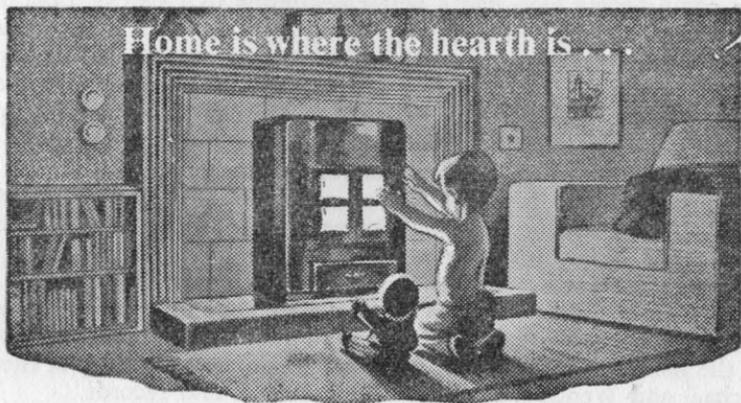

In November we held a "Tramps" supper at Pip Mannasseh's farm. This was a great success and tremendously enjoyed by all.

In January this year we held a Social and Dance. About thirty-five were present. Despite small numbers however this was a great success, due mainly to the efforts of our very fine band.

Our last gathering before Whitsun Reunion was held at Nina Ridgeley's home, where we had another pleasant social evening looking at coloured slides of local beauty spots by Barbara Abercrombie. We also enjoyed listening to the records of Gerrard Hoffnung.

Activities will recommence in the Autumn. Those who do not know of our local Branch please contact the Secretary.

Hugh W. Maw

The period of Hugh Maw's headship — almost six years — was one of expansion and consequent change.

Sibford had always placed great emphasis on the craft subjects, but it was clear that the time had come when we should bring our facilities for practical work up to date. New classrooms, too, were needed. As a result the boys' spartan accommodation at the Hill was taken over for a new art room, a pottery room and five classrooms. The domestic science room was reorganised and a metal workshop was housed in the old art room. New changing rooms were built for both boys and girls and a music school begun.

The "homeless" boys were accommodated in three dormitory houses, Nansen, Lister and Penn, each one to sleep forty boys. The opening of these Houses was an important step in the progress and development of the School.

Both Hugh and Daphne Maw entered into the life of the village, where they made many friends, while Daphne and the family were very much a part of the School. Both staff and children appreciated the homeliness of Holly House and the welcome which was always there.

We are grateful for Hugh Maw's care and hard work for the School, and for his personal interest in the individual boy and girl.

The School Year

Each School year brings much change but certainly not "change and decay" for the innovations and alterations which were mentioned in the last survey have brought new life into the School. The music block which for so long had seemed a far off dream has at last materialised, completed through generous gifts of money. Choir, orchestra, five-finger exercises are now, if not inaudible, at least unobtrusive. No longer does "clause analysis" fight a losing battle against the strain of Beethoven floating across from room 5.

The new changing rooms and showers are at last on a par with the rest of the Hill building, which, in itself has been re-decorated and much improved in appearance. More girls' dormitories have been tastefully curtailed and decorated. It is good to think that at the head of the maintenance staff, responsible for most of this is Arthur Harrison, an Old Scholar.

The hard tennis courts, marked also for netball, have been placed to the east of Nansen House. Again this was a result of generosity, this time of the Braithwaite Trust to whom we are once again grateful.

The usual traditional fun and outings have been enjoyed. In particular, Old Scholars' Weekend was a most happy and friendly gathering for us all.

The work of Hugh Maw is spoken of elsewhere. As he and his family left we welcomed Jonas Fielding as Headmaster, and his family as part of our Sibford family. Many Old Scholars have already met and welcomed them at Whitsuntide. We hope it will not be long before they are known to all.

School Committee

The time has come to write another School Committee Report for the Magazine. How the years pass by, and how Sibford grows.

Ever since I have been your representative on the School Committee, the School has been expanding—first the Hall Library, and Old Scholars' Room, then the alterations to the Dining Room, Kitchen and Swimming Bath. Next, the Boys' Houses and the change of Dormitories for Class-rooms at the Hill; alterations to Boys' and Girls' Toilets and the conversion of the Girls' old Cloakrooms to a Music School, to the delight of the Music Master.

Now they have three hard tennis courts, and one of the Cadbury Trusts have promised a large sum towards the building of a Science Laboratory, which will probably mean an entirely new Science Block. This has made the Committee work very exciting.

We are also exploring the possibility of converting the Old Manor into three Girls' Houses, improving and enlarging the Dining Room once more to enable all the children to get in.

At the October Committee Meeting, the Chairman welcomed your other Representative, Vera Rollett, to the Committee. We also had the pleasure of seeing Martin Samuels, another Old Scholar, representing the Kent Quarterly Meeting. Both Vera and myself are on the Building Sub-Committee, so have to do a good deal of walking around to see what has to be done now, and allocate for the improvements we should like to see in the future.

Shortly, we shall be asking you to help us to compile a full and comprehensive list of every one who has been a Scholar at Sibford since 1900, so if you can help by letting us know the address or addresses of everyone who has been at Sibford, but lost touch with the Old Scholars' Association, do write to us, please.

From Bernard W. Blunsom. I feel sure that O.S. who know me will be interested to hear that I was married in July last year. My cousin, Vivian Lamb, was best man at the wedding. On the boat out in February, 1961, I met Jean and had proposed to her before we landed at Wellington. We had a glorious trip out in every way—the weather was hot and the ship a comfortable one. I stayed with the Grubbs at Christchurch and, after our wedding, we settled in a flat in that City. I obtained a job in the office of the large Mental Hospital there, on the Stores records side. The employment is under the Public Service Commission, a Government body.

Jean was for many years engaged on herd-testing work in the North Island, and is a trained farmer as well. She made many friends around there, and consequently we decided to move up to Auckland in February of this year.

I was fortunate to be transferred into the office of the large Mental Hospital there. We found this house which suits us well; it is only a few moments from a beach and has a nice sunny verandah and garden. I attend the Auckland Meeting for Worship as frequently as possible.

At present it is winter here, but apart from cold nights, the sun shines warmly during the days. It is mild indeed compared with the English winter—there is no similarity. The weather in Auckland is really subtropical, and we have lemon trees in the garden.

New Zealand is a lovely country, but all the same we miss the old land, and doubtless will return one day.

Would you please remember me to any O.S. who knows me and give them all my hearty greetings.

From Nancy Bottoms. I was at Sibford this year for the Re-union and I think I must have imparted quite a lot of information about myself as I eventually lost my voice and had to leave in a hurry on Monday afternoon. I was "proper poorly" for the rest of the week and only just recovered by the following weekend to return to Canada and the bosom of my family.

I was delighted to have the opportunity to visit Sibford this summer, although the purpose of my trip to England was a sad one. My old dad died in May, quite suddenly in the end, although he had been ill for three years. I had planned to visit him in the middle of June, in which case I would have missed O.S. Anyway, I spent a month in England and did a lot of visiting, although I was miserable for the first two weeks due to the cold weather. For weeks prior to my trip we had been experiencing wonderful weather in Canada—it was 94°F. when I took off from Toronto and only 48°F. when I landed in London and raining! One suitcase does not allow for such extremes in temperature and it's hardly any wonder that I took sick. When I arrived back it was 88°F. and how I loved it even though by this time I was dressed in heavy clothes and everyone else was walking around in sun dresses. Our slogan should be altered to read, "Ye menne of Sheepeforde wendeth wheresoever they willen only if they can stand climatic changes." Two weeks after my return from England we took off up North for the family vacation. We went camping in the Aigonquins—a very lovely Provincial Park situated between Georgian Bay on the one side and the Ottawa River on the other. It covers 2,910 square miles and the wild life is protected here, so bears and wolves are the next door neighbours of campers. It is many a long year since I last slept in a tent and I felt rather timid about exposing my ageing bones to the discomforts of camp life. However, there must be a tough streak in me still, because I really enjoyed our two weeks in the bush. Our two teenage boys have been camping a good deal since coming to Canada and never really believed that Ivan and I would stay the course, let alone enjoy it. Our 5-year-old can't wait for the warm weather to come around again so that we can take off on our travels again. I must admit that I love the easy method of travelling on this continent and we have in the past enjoyed some very memorable trips down into the States—to the Finger Lakes and the Allaghenny Forest in New York State, and last year we went right through Pennsylvania as far as Harrisburg, staying at Motels en route. I could write a book on Pennsylvania as I loved it so much. However, I am too lazy by nature, so I will just bore my friends instead.

To name a few Old Scholars who have passed our way and stopped to visit—Brian Dancer and his family who had been vacationing in the States and were returning to Montreal. Margaret Smith who lives in Toronto, Christopher Marland and family who are living north of Toronto, Rob Dale who was going on a jaunt to Niagara Falls with the Comet crew, and his mother, Mrs. Wm. Dale, stayed with us while she was on holiday in Canada and U.S.A. We have also had visits from many of our friends from England and we should always be happy to see any other Old Scholars who might want to stop off the Highway for a cup of coffee. We are the only "Bottoms" in the St. Catharines telephone directory and we have two cars in the family these days, so meeting people isn't a problem. The world has become so small and people travel so much these days that I am never surprised to see old friends on our doorstep. I am still faintly astonished though when I realise that such a "slow starter" as myself has, in the last eight years, lived in the Persian Gulf, returned to England for a year and crossed the Atlantic five times.

I found it so refreshing to return to Sibford and find so many Old Scholars there that I knew, as I felt that eight years was perhaps rather a long time to be away. I, naturally, noticed all the changes there and expressed my approval but I still couldn't help wondering if perhaps it was as much fun at Sibford these days. I am sure present scholars would soon correct me but I still wonder.

Very briefly — Ivan is Chief Engineer with a firm of Contractors in Hamilton. David and Stephen are both at High School. Geoffrey started at Kindergarten this year and I just keep the wheels turning at home. Since coming to Canada I have interested myself in our local Community

Theatre Group — in the Wardrobe Dept. and last year I also joined the Operatic Society. I can't sing but because I can sew I am pretty useful and last year I did all the costumes for their production of "Showboat."

I was happy to hear that you still have Cricket matches with Old Scholars at Jordans. Ivan joined the Cricket Club the first year we came to St. Catharines, but he found less and less time and finally we dropped out, but we still go to all the social functions and we always hope that maybe next summer we shall have more time to play.

From Betty Friend. As I write this letter today, 30th October, it is with a sincere hope that by the time this letter is read we will be living our peaceful, energetic, full lives, for that certainly describes life in Canada as I have seen it in St. Catharines during the past seven years. I say this as our peace was certainly disturbed these past two weeks, due to the Cuban situation.

It is impossible to get a true picture of any place unless one actually lives there for a period of time. We all sleep, eat, work and seek our pleasures, but there is a difference, and this I feel is influenced by the climate. Maybe I can give you some idea of the difference.

We can always depend on our fair share of snow from December until April. It is cold—very cold—with temperatures rarely up to 30°F. However, as I write this letter, Xmas Cards and gifts are already in the stores, and by December the city streets will all be lit up with lights, just like fairyland. Homes, too, are decorated outside—the trees, shrubs, doors and windows all glimmer from colourful lights. It gives everyone a feeling of joy and well being. Canadians make the most of every festive occasion, especially Christmas. Presents are exchanged at home and in business. Credit is used to the maximum. The most delightful sight is the Christmas concert of carols on the City Hall steps, usually in the snow and illuminated by the lights from the tall evergreen trees which are a part of the garden decorating the City Hall.

This spirit prevails way into January and the snow and cold seem to add to the glow. The children love it. They have every kind of implement to enjoy the snow — from toboggans to "flying saucers." The ski enthusiasts have their favourite spots within easy reach of the cities, and ski lodges are overflowing every weekend during the winter.

With April comes the thaw. Sometimes it is fast and suddenly the grass we thought was dead is bright green. Other times it rains and rains, but the air is soft and we know it will soon be Spring. In May the trees burst into life again and we have our first spring flowers — the crocus and the daffodils. The temperature is up to 60°F. and, since spring is so short, and winter havoc in the garden so great, it is always a busy time for the gardener. Boat lovers put their boats in the water again and preparations for the wonderful summer months we enjoy is on the way.

June is a bright, clear month with blue skies and long warm days. Weekends are spent picnicking, having barbecue parties in the garden, boating, etc. Many families are fortunate enough to be able to afford a cottage by the lake in addition to their city home. It is quite usual for them to spend the entire summer there, away from the city heat which often reaches 95°F. There the air is cooler and the life is relaxing—in fact, is one long holiday for a very reasonable cost.

Northern Ontario is the area usually chosen for the summer retreat. It is just beautiful, with little civilisation to mar the vast wonder of the miles and miles of woods and lakes. There is no one who does not appreciate Canada's scenery, and during the summer months the highways are filled with cars, not only Canadian but United States visitors also.

I cannot remember a summer I have not enjoyed here, and I am not alone. Everyone seems to drift along happily, helping one another in many ways in work and in pleasure. I have heard it said that a person's temperament is affected by prevailing climate conditions, and this certainly seems to be true.

And so we meet Autumn with a little sadness, but with renewed vigour we attack our jobs and school. They say that variety is the spice of life, and maybe we all appreciate this changing climate more than we realise. In November the leaves are still falling, the days are still sunny but there is a briskness in the air that is very refreshing.

As regards my personal life. I am kept very busy with two daughters age 17 and 13 and a husband. I also work full-time as a secretary; this I did when I first came to Canada to help establish us financially, and so it goes on. There always seems to be a reason why I should go on working, but I suppose the real reason is that I enjoy it.

St. Catharines, though small—the population is around 80,000, is very lively. We have a Civic Orchestra, an Operatic Society and several theatrical groups, all doing their utmost to promote some culture to these so-called culturally uneducated Canadians. Nancy and Ivan Bottoms have been very active in the theatre here, and Ivan has now been nominated as a Candidate in the local Municipal elections. Let us hope he is successful in his new venture.

We have two Cricket Clubs in the city, consisting largely of foreigners! The Tennis Club is very active and one can always be sure of meeting one member at least, who is from England. These two sports are not too popular here. They are not taught in the schools. Baseball, football and ice hockey are the favourite sports and this, I think, will always be so.

As regards education, this is subject to much criticism, but I have found with my own children that it is there if the child has the desire to learn. The problem is that many have not, and this problem arises everywhere. At five years old the child goes to public school, which is the equivalent of your elementary school. There are eight grades in public school, and the child must complete all eight grades satisfactorily before graduating to high school. High school is the next step. There are comparatively few private schools in Canada and any child has the opportunity to be educated through to matriculation with no cost to the parents. High School has five grades. Junior matriculation is taken in grade 12 and Senior matriculation in grade 13. This is peculiar to Ontario as all other provinces require only grade 12 matriculation for entry into Universities, Colleges, etc. My seventeen year old daughter is presently in grade 13, and this is unusual and due to her schooling in England prior to grade 6. The usual age is 18 and 19 for senior matriculation. Grade 13, I am told, is the equivalent of first year University. I do not believe it can truthfully be said that Canadian education is inadequate.

As you may have gathered, I love the life here in Canada. I was happy in England too, and the re-adjustment period was pretty grim. However, life is what you make it wherever you are.

I would like to express my grateful thanks to Miss Burgess. Maybe I should do this privately, but I feel that many of her past students must feel as I do, and may I say this from all of us. But for her I would never have written this letter, enjoyed plays and books as I have, and unknowing she somehow conveyed to me some spirit of enjoying life in the right way. Maybe it was because she loved plays, books and poetry herself; maybe it reached me when we had a quiet talk in front of her fire in her study one night. I don't know, but I am eternally grateful.

Records of Old Scholars

We are endeavouring to compile an up-to-date record of all the boys and girls who have passed through Sibford School.

As you know, the School has now been running for 120 years, so something like 4,000 pupils have been taught there, but we have only approximately 800 on our S.O.S.A. Register. Many of these, of course, have passed on, but nevertheless, searching through the records, we find 2,206 have entered the School since 1900, the majority of which are still alive.

Do YOU know of anyone who has been to Sibford who is not recorded as a member? Look through the list of members, send the names and addresses of any not there to Vera Rollett, Holmby House, Sibford Ferris, Banbury, Oxon. If you know what they are doing in the way of business or occupation, and if they are on the telephone, let us know. In this way we can find out what a Sibford education has done for our boys and girls.

Don't hesitate, do it now. Vera has taken on a mammoth task for us and is spending a lot of time compiling this register. It's up to us to help her as much as we can. She cannot possibly accomplish the task without your help.

Try to persuade non-members to pay a visit to Sibford to see what's been going on since they left, and assure them that they will be in for a surprise.

The Leavers' Outing

When arranging the outing for 1962 the Committee decided to be rather more ambitious than previously and plans were made to take the Leavers to Abingdon, by way of Oxford and Messrs. Salters steamers. The idea was to travel by coach to Oxford, board the boat for Abingdon, have tea at Abingdon and afterwards return to Oxford by boat and thence by coach back to Sibford. All plans were laid, and we were ready for an enjoyable day out.

I was asked to see that everything went like clock-work; as coach and steamer were booked I thought mine was an easy task, and I duly turned up at Sibford in time to see that everyone caught the coach at the appointed time. At 1-10 p.m., the time I was told we should be leaving, no coach had arrived. After making several rather frantic 'phone calls it eventually became established that no coach was going to turn up; somewhere along the line the arrangements had gone astray, but not through any fault of Old Scholars, I am glad to say.

The boat that we were supposed to catch was due to leave Folly Bridge, Oxford, at 2-30 p.m. and, as we were still at Sibford at 1-45 p.m., all thoughts of that boat had to be abandoned. A quick telephone call to the owners fixed that. The problem then became, what could eight or nine Old Scholars do with thirty-nine Leavers? Jonas Fielding and Gladys Burgess counted up the number of Staff cars to see if, with the Staff's co-operation, enough places could be found to transport everyone, but to no avail. Suddenly someone suggested trying Matthews, in Brailes, and as if by magic, they managed to produce a bus for us. The only one they had available was a 29-seater, and by a bit of squeezing we were able to fit in about thirty-six people, including three Old Scholars. By taking the car I had hired, Irene Coxon's car, and by Frank Rollett borrowing Peter Baily's car, we had transport for all the Leavers, but we had to leave some Old Scholars at Sibford.

It was much too late to go to Oxford, so we all drove straight to Abingdon. We had our tea, and then as we now had time to spare, we wandered around the town until at 5-15 p.m. everyone, except the drivers, piled on the "Mary Stewart" for the trip to Oxford. The drivers had to take the cars and coach back to Oxford to meet the boat at the end of the trip. We duly picked up our passengers, and all arrived back at Sibford safe and sound. The day was apparently much enjoyed by all in spite of the false start, and a great measure of thanks are due to Messrs. R. Matthews & Son for producing a bus for us at such short notice; without their help we should have been in real trouble.

I have only one closing comment—I would like to know what the river Thames is like between Abingdon and Oxford!!

Eva Herbert

With the death of Eva Herbert on 16th October, our Association lost a valued member, and the School a link with a much-loved former Master. Her keen interest in, and knowledge of, Old Scholars (particularly those of Roland's time) was amazing, and she never tired of hearing news of them. There was always a warm welcome for all callers at her home, and Shrubbery Cottage was visited by many Old Scholars at all times of the year.

The village, too, will miss their well-known and much-esteemed friend. Eva was the daughter of the late Joshua and Lucy Sophia Lamb (née Binns), the latter our President in 1913/14, and to her death she retained her father's unique knowledge and love of flowers. Some older members will recall the wonderful wild-flower garden he cultivated. Here were collected something like five hundred rare wild flowers, and the garden was visited by Horticultural Societies and expert gardeners from many parts of the world. On the death of Joshua Lamb, some of the specimens were distributed to Botanical Gardens at Oxford and Kew, and his Herbarium went to Haslemere Museum. The site of this garden is now occupied by the two bungalows adjacent to Penn House. To visit Eva's garden was always a joy, and one usually came away with (or found on one's doorstep at other times) fruit, vegetables or flowers which she had grown.

Eva Herbert's indomitable courage was always an inspiration to all who knew her. Only a very few years before her death she voluntarily underwent two operations to cure her deafness, a disability from which she had suffered most of her life. She will be much missed, but we shall ever be grateful for her friendship.

From Anne Rado. We've been in Uganda now for over six months. For several months there were five of us; Emil and his mother, the latter on a visit from Hungary, came by 'plane in September, and I followed with the children by boat and train in November. That was during the dreadful flood period, and I came up on the only train that got through from Mombasa for several weeks: I had a few days' wait at Mombasa while the lines were being repaired, and the train that followed mine went into a river when a bridge gave way.

Makerere College is on the outskirts of Kampala, the capital of Uganda. It is situated near the northern shore of Lake Victoria, the second largest lake in the world, 4,000 ft. above sea level. The climate is delightful: cool at night, warm in the day, fairly humid and rainy so that the landscape is all a luscious green in the lake region. It is very hilly—Kampala itself is built on about seven hills, all with glorious views. Some of the hills have impressive buildings on top of them, such as an Anglican cathedral, a Catholic cathedral, a mosque, the Buganda parliament, the palace of the Kabaka (King of Buganda)—for Kampala is the capital of the kingdom of Buganda as well as of Uganda. It is rather a beautiful city, and culturally and racially it is fascinating. The population (of Kampala) consists of an almost equal number of Africans and Asians (i.e., Indians, Pakistanis and Goans by origin), with a few hundred Europeans. The Europeans are mostly administrators and teachers, the Asians traders and professional people (almost all the shops in Kampala are owned and run by Asians; we haven't discovered a single African store in town)—and the Africans are everything else, including politicians, some doctors and other professional people, some civil servants, teachers, etc.—and they do most of the non-white-collar jobs.

There is deplorably little social mixing between the races, although it's possible to select your friends wherever you like and meet them almost anywhere (there are a few single-race clubs, but that's about all—there's no official colour bar now). It's just that most people don't bother to make friends outside their own colour. We've been into some homes and discovered that no Asian or African has ever been invited in; and the other races keep to themselves just as much, more or less (Asians more, Africans less, in general). Such a wonderful opportunity for all races and cultures to meet and get to understand each other, and so few people make use of it!

But the opportunity is there, and once you "show willing" you have no difficulty in finding friends all over the place. Ours are a complete mixture—our closest friends are two Indians (East African by birth) in their mid-twenties, one a lecturer at Makerere, the other the only woman lawyer in Uganda; and a Ugandan who was at Williamstown with us (John Kaboha) and his Swiss wife and little boy, the same age as David; and a few other Ugandans. If we counted up our twenty closest friends, I think they would be almost equally distributed between the races. And they all get on fine with each other, too.

Our home is five miles from Makerere and Kampala, on a small college-owned housing estate. It is delightfully situated, on a steep hillside with a stream in the valley and the hillside opposite covered with banana groves. Our house is a very pleasant bungalow (and we have a spare bedroom, in case any of you are passing this way . . .) with a huge garden, about 2½ acres. Emil has become an enthusiastic gardener (as was his mother, while she was with us) and we grow all kinds of flowers and vegetables. You can grow almost anything here that can be grown in Europe or Africa, and most vegetables are ready to eat within two months of their seeds being planted! Most of the garden, though, consists of a large lawn, levelled out in three terraces because of the steep slope, and it's a wonderful playground for us all: we have an American swing and slide set and a sand-pit for the children, and a tenniquits court for ourselves. We also have a large collection of pot plants all grown for the brilliance of their leaves rather than their flowers.

Before I close I'll just say something about my job which I started on 1st May and which is rather interesting. I am Secretary of the Uganda Council of Women, a mornings-only job (the children attend nursery school in the mornings, and love it), which brings me into contact with a large number of people—women, anyway—of all races. In fact I should think the Kampala branch of the Council is about equally divided in membership between the three races, and they actually mix—I mean they don't get together in little single-race groups at the meetings, which is not uncommon in such groups; and the Executive Committee itself, of which I'm the Secretary, is about half European.

It's a voluntary organisation (I'm their only paid employee in the whole country) and its aim is to work for the betterment of women and children. There is a Committee on the status of women, for instance, which has just published a booklet on the laws of marriage in Uganda, and is hoping that now that they are set down for everyone to read some of the really archaic and unfair ones may be altered, if public opinion is aroused. Previously it was just too complicated, and most people didn't know what the laws were and how they affected them, before it was all written down in simple language. You see, there are so many forms of marriage here—Under the Ordinance (i.e., according to Colonial Law, which is the British law of 1905 and only allows divorce for adultery), Hindu, Muslim, and all the African customary laws. It was impossible in such a small booklet to go into detail about all the last-named, but the striking example of a marriage law that needs revision is the Muslim one, according to which (only in this country) a man can divorce his wife simply by saying three times, "I divorce thee," and from that moment on is under no obligation ever to see her again or give her any financial help or allow her into his house; or her children either. There have been plenty of bad cases of hardship arising from this, and it is hoped that the Muslims themselves will now do something about it. Right now one of my jobs is distribution of the booklet . . . Then there are things like literacy campaigns and other educational schemes for women, not necessarily started by the U.C.W. but certainly helped by them. This is Executive Committee work. In addition, there are branches all over the country also taking part in these schemes where they can, but also providing meeting places where women can get to know each other, and as they are inter-racial this is very useful. They have monthly meetings, generally with a speaker or some other programme.

Our children are generally fine though, unfortunately, germs seem to like this climate as much as we do and there are always colds and worse infections around. David is just four now, Cyndy just two. They both love stories, nursery rhymes and all the other things they learn at school, and we love listening to them reciting their own versions. One of our current favourites is Cyndy's "Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet, eating her Christmas spider." She's a charming little monkey, and more flirtatious than I would ever have thought possible in a two-year-old! David can be charming, too, though unfortunately he's more often a pain in the neck; we do hope he'll grow out of it! Luckily he improves tremendously when he goes out anywhere, so other people are apt to get a much more favourable impression of him.

We have a sweet little three-month-old puppy, a cross between a Ridgeback and an Alsatian. We call him Shango, the name of the Yoruba (of Nigeria) God of iron—though he doesn't look much like that so far—he's just a cuddly little bundle. He seems to be having a good effect on David, who adores him and is growing a little more gentle in his company.
